Yankee Clipper Crashes At Lisbon; Four Dead, 20 Missing

(By Associated Press)

LISBON — The trans-Atlantic flying boat Yankee Clipper is at the bottom of the Tagus river here today after a landing crash yesterday at the end of a flight from New York in which four persons were reported dead and 20 missing.

Sixteen other persons were rescued, but a number of them were injured. All four women passengers aboard were saved.

Among those rescued was a woman whose name was given as Jean Froman, radio singer. (In New York, however, the woman was identified as the well-known radio performer, Jane Froman, by her husband, Donald Ross. Ross said he had received confirmation that his wife was in the crash.)

Another woman brought ashore was listed as Yvet Silver. She was less seriously injured than the others.

William Butterworth, first secretary of the American legation, who was among the passengers, suffered shock. Two others listed as passengers and taken to a hospital were Clifford Heldon and Spicle Lee.

Capt. R. O. D. Sullivan, who was in command of the flying boat, was among the injured, but he was unable to fix the cause of the disaster.

Port officials said there was little wind and almost no rain as the plane arrived, but that the air was heavily loaded with electricity.

"They kept talking to us from the ship and all seemed well aboard," the officials said.

"The last words were, 'We are now turning right to land.' The plane must have fallen in an unusually low airpocket- the right wing touched the water.

"We could see the desperate effort to straighten her up, but flames began coming out and the ship sank in a few seconds."

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The civil aeronautics board today said it was taking "immediate steps" to investigate the crash of the Pan-American clipper plane into the Tagus river at Lisbon, Portugal, yesterday.

The CAB said that the flying boat, a Boeing 314, was en route to Foyneseire and was making a regularly scheduled stop at Lisbon after an intermediate call at Horta in the Azores.

Gandhi's Condition Worse on 14th Day of Fast.

NEW DELHI — (AP) — Mohandas K. Gandhi, now in the 14th day of his scheduled 21-day fast in protest against his detention by British authorities, passed a quiet day yesterday and slept several hours although he is growing "progressively weaker," dispatches from Poona said.

The crisis created by his six months confinement in the Palace of the Aga Khan at Poona and his sudden decision to fast at the age of 73 depended as it became apparent he might die if the fast is not ended soon.

(In London, the New Chronicle, in an editorial today, said that "Gandhi is dying in captivity" and asked Prime Minister Churchill to free him "as an act of high moral courage at a time when the world's standards of morality are at a very low ebb.")

MINISTER HURT

British Envoy Injured In African Air Accident.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA — (INS) — Harold McMillan, British resident minister in North Africa, suffered slight injuries in a recent airplane accident, an official announcement said today.

The accident occurred when the plane made a forced landing almost immediately after the take-off. McMillan was bruised and shaken, but his condition is satisfactory and he soon will resume his duties, the announcement said.

Sea Disaster, New Regulations on Food Grim Sounding Board For Talk.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt's flat warning the American people "still face reverses and misfortunes" in war today re-echoed against the grim sounding-board of a record sea disaster and new food regulations on the home front.

Seeking to puncture what he saw as a bubble of optimistic reaction to Russian victories, the president in a Washington's birthday address last night cautioned the nation to remember it still is "at war," and that it can not count on miracles to achieve victory.

His warning followed by only a few hours the navy's announcement that more than 850 lives were lost in the torpedoing of two passenger ships early this month in the nation's worst disaster thus far in the North Atlantic war.

The presidential admonitions were prefaced, too, by news of an emergency price freeze on five previously uncontrolled fresh vegetables, clamped on by the Office of Price Administration to "avert further sharp speculative price advances" as a result of canned goods rationing.

While likening enthusiasm over Soviet victories to that following the American Revolutionary war triumph over General Burgoyne's army at Saratoga in 1777 — which he said brought premature "proclamations that the war was practically won"—the president did not minimize the Russian gains.

On the contrary, less than two

Wickard Suspends Marketing Quotas on Wheat.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Restrictions on production of wheat were lifted today by order of Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard.

Wickard suspended wheat marketings quotas in what he called a new move to insure adequate food and feed supplies for the war effort. His action lifts marketing quotas for the remainder of the 1942-1943 marketing year and for 1943-1944, and releases wheat for feed or market which has been held off the market because of quota limitations.

Wheat farmers who meet 90 per cent of their war crop goals this year, it was also announced, will be eligible for AAA wheat payments and wheat loans even though they exceed their wheat allotments.

Rickenbacker Opposes Fourth Term For President Roosevelt

(By International News Service)

ALBANY, N. Y. — Capt. E. V. "Eddie" Rickenbacker, American air ace, today went on record as being opposed to a fourth term for President Roosevelt.

Addressing a joint session of the New York state legislature last night during which he also called on congress to "clarify our labor laws" Rickenbacker said:

"You cannot demand that the mass of common folk shall think only of winning the war if the aristocracy of labor unionism is thinking only of more dues and more power—and the inner clique of bureaucracy is thinking only of a fourth term.

"Any administration that demands unity must begin by setting an example of unity. Any administration that talks of 'equality of sacrifice' must honestly mean sacrifice by all, not sacrifice by the many for the financial and political advantage of the few."

During the course of his address which he delivered as a guest of the legislature, Rickenbacker accused labor "racketeers and parasites" of hindering the war effort

Meet Tonight On $59,000 War Fund Campaign For Red Cross

Confronted with the task of raising a fund double that of last year, some 600 Mansfield and Richland county Red Cross workers will meet tonight to receive instructions for the $59,000 war fund campaign which opens Monday.

Reasons for the enlarged quota will be outlined by Edwin T. Thayer, assistant Red Cross director at Fort Knox, Ky., principal speaker at the rally which opens at 8 p. m. at the American Legion home.

The session will be the only mass meeting of workers prior to the opening of the drive, L. W. Birch, war fund chairman, said. He added that it was hoped that the $59,000 quota will be reached by March 15, or 15 days before the national drive ends.

Nearly 20,000 pledge cards will be distributed among the workers at tonight's session which will emphasize the "Give Double" slogan of national headquarters, Birch said.

Expressing confidence that the goal will be reached, Birch said that of the amount raised, $19,000 will remain with the Richland Red Cross chapter and $40,000 will be turned over to national headquarters.

"The amount to be given national headquarters may appear surprising to some persons but in reality much of it returns to Richland county in the form of supplies and equipment needed to make the thousands of items needed in the war effort," Birch explained.

He added that if needed, "national headquarters would send thousands of dollars to Richland county in the event of a dis-

MAIL CHANGE

Saturday Afternoon Deliveries Cease, Homberger Says.

There will be no more Saturday afternoon mail deliveries in Mansfield, Postmaster Herman Homberger announced today.

The service was inaugurated about three weeks ago when federal employes began a 48-hour, rather than 40-hour, weekly schedule. The postal authorities interpreted the new hour ruling to provide for the increased Saturday service until a clarifying order came through this week.

The government order said that the additional hours were expected to make increased services possible through the week and not provide for the Saturday afternoon deliveries. Carriers will work longer each day, Homberger said, which will result in more complete daily deliveries. They will work five and one-half hours on Saturday. Postoffice windows will close at 12:30 p. m. Saturday.

Garbage Dumping On Street Costs Mansfielder Fine

Walter Westfall, 181 North Mulberry street, decided today it probably will be cheaper to subscribe to the city's garbage collection service than to pay another fine of $10 and costs for dumping rubbish on or along a public highway.

Arraigned before Municipal Judge H. H. Schettler this morning, Westfall pleaded guilty of the dumping charge based on city-county health department sanitary regulations. He told the court he had hauled a considerable quantity of garbage, tin cans and other rubbish in a dump truck to a ditch on Long-

Allied Convoy Beats Off Jap Torpedo Raid

Bring Down Five Of Eight Nipponese Planes Off Solomons.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—American fliers, striking anew at both ends of the Pacific battle line, raided Kiska in the Aleutians and two Japanese bases in the central Solomons, the navy announced today. All of our planes returned from all operations.

(By Associated Press)

Dispatches from the South seas reported today that an Allied convoy had dramatically beaten off a night attack by Japanese torpedo planes south of Guadalcanal island, in the Solomons, destroying five of eight enemy aircraft and escaping without a single hit.

The convoy was made up of transports and escorting destroyers.

The Japanese attackers tried tactics which were successfully used in sinking the cruiser Chicago but paid the price for attempting the repetition, said an eye-witness account which censorship approved for use today.

(The Tokyo radio, heard in London Feb. 20, broadcast a Japanese communique which claimed Jap navy planes sank two destroyers and one large transport in an attack Feb. 17 on escorted convoys near San Cristobal island, southeast of Guadalcanal.

(The cruiser Chicago was sunk Jan. 30 south of Guadalcanal in the vicinity of Rennell island. It was crippled by two torpedoes launched from planes in an attack the night of Jan. 29 and finished off by four aerial torpedoes the following day.)

The Japanese took elaborate pains to illuminate the convoy as they did during the terrific battle off Savo island Nov. 10 to 14, 1942. Reconnaissance planes had been tracking the convoy all day. When dusk turned into blackness flares were dropped lighting up the ocean like a stage setting. Other flares were dropped which floated outside the edges of our convoy. The Japs came in. U. S. Smashes Back At Nazi Columns, Destroys Six Enemy Tanks.

(By Associated Press)

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced a brighter turn in the battle of central Tunisia today as tank-led American and British troops, smashing back at German armored columns, "successfully held the enemy at all points" north and northwest of the Kasserine gap.

Besides halting the most dangerous Nazi thrust in the hills north of Kasserine Pass, American guns and continuous relays of U. S. warplanes turned back another German column of 40 tanks, motorized infantry and mobile guns striking toward Tebessa.

Front dispatches said the Tebessa-bound columns fell back toward its sally port after suffering a "considerable number" of casualties and losing many tanks under a murderous fire by American gunners.

At least six German tanks and 10 trucks were listed as destroyed by aerial attack alone.

One of the bitterest battles of the Tunisian campaign was reported still raging near Thala, 25 miles north of Kasserine.

"Heavy fighting continued throughout the day," an Allied communique said, with the Germans throwing powerful tank and infantry forces into the attack.

But the Americans and British inflicted heavy casualties on the Nazis, captured prisoners and destroyed or wrecked a number of enemy tanks, Gen. Eisenhower reported.

Allied warplanes formed a protective umbrella over the Anglo-U. S. ground troops, who were battling fiercely to defend the strategic Kremamsa plateau northof the Axis-captured Kasserine Pass.

In other sectors, the communique said, "our patrols have been active and successfully repulsed the enemy wherever encountered and have taken prisoners in several places."

Italian headquarters acknowledged that the Allies had launched a series of counter-attacks but

REVENGE: U. S. Sinks Two Axis Subs, Bares Loss Of 850 Yanks

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The navy announced today the sinking of a German submarine in the Atlantic and a Japanese submarine in the Pacific and Secretary Knox said that every available weapon is being used to bring the Atlantic U-boat menace under control.

Knox told a press conference that generally speaking losses of United Nations merchantships in the Atlantic have been much lower in the last three months but the submarine, he declared, "most emphatically still is a very grave menace."

Evidence of this menace was plain in the navy's announcement yesterday of the torpedo-sinking of two passenger-cargo ships in the north Atlantic early this month with more than 850 persons dead or missing.

Most of the casualties were army and navy officers and men, or members of the marine corps and coast guard. It was the worst loss-of-life disaster for America in the war.

The two sinkings announced today, the secretary said, are not isolated cases but of other subs believed to have been successfully attacked at least a percentage would have to be classified only as "probably sunk." The navy still

AVENGERS: Stalin Says Reds Bear Brunt Of Battle Alone

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Premier Josef Stalin, hailing Russia's military forces on their 25th anniversary as "an army of avengers," said today that "in view of the absence of a second front in Europe the Red army alone is bearing the whole weight of the war," and ordered a fight to the death against the German invaders, 4,000,000 of whom he said the Russians had killed in 20 months.

"Death to the German invaders" was his exhortation in a lengthy order of the day which he signed as supreme commander in chief.

In it he reviewed both Russian defeats and successes since Germany's invasion of Russia in June, 1941; assayed the shrinking German chances of success; derided German strategy, and warned his people that a bitter fight remained.

"The enemy has suffered defeat but he is not yet conquered," Stalin said. " . . . The Red army has before it a severe struggle against the cunning, cruel, and as yet strong enemy."

But, said Stalin, "the fact is Fascist Germany is becoming more and more exhausted while the Soviet Union is more and more developing its reserves and becoming even stronger. Time is working against Fascist Germany."

Since the beginning of the war, the Russians have put out of com-

GALION MAN'S DEATH BLAMED ON EXPOSURE

Aged Resident Found Ill In Unheated Home Dies Soon Afterward at Hospital.

GALION—Exposure was given as the cause of the death of Harry Nelson, old age pensioner, who was admitted to City hospital, Monday. He died at the hospital at 5 p. m. Monday, where he had been taken after police found him in his home at the rear of Lemley's store, 123 West Pearson street.

When he had not been seen for several days, police were called to investigate, and found him seriously ill. Mr. was past 65 years of age. His attending physician said that he had apparently been in the house without heat, and that exposure had caused his death.

The body was removed to the Snyder Funeral home. Arrangements for services and burial will not be made until some relative can be reached.

TALKS ON WAR SERVICE NEED

National Girl Scout Speaker Appears at Meeting of Galion Rotary Club.

GALION—That the training of Girl Scouts is an important war service, was stressed in a talk by Miss Betsy Ross of the National Staff of the Girl Scouts organization, when she was guest speaker, Monday night, for "Ladies' Night" of the Galion Rotary club at Hotel Talbott.

Why the Girl Scouts' association training is important at present is because youth is the raw material for future citizens, she said. Training of the young people is important to all nations as well as to the United States. Effects of the training of youth is noticed in Germany's example, the speaker declared. Not only Germany, but other countries, has been affected by the training of the young people regarding certain ideals.

Miss Ross told of the training Girl Scouts get in the intangible features which go to make good future citizens. She said that work of the Girl Scout association started here has been delayed because of failure to select a president of the organization.

There were 38 present, including Rotarians, Rotary "Anns" and others. Mrs. Marguerite Reilley, superintendent of the Marysville Reformatory for Women, her husband, and daughter, Jean, and Ed Smith of the Rotary club of Marion, were among the guests.

PROGRAM SET

Crawford Achievement Day To Be Staged March 19.

BUCYRUS — Women of the Crawford county home council have designated March 19 as the date of the annual county-wide achievement day to be held in the Y. M. C. A. An afternoon event, a feature of the program will be a tea to be provided by the home counselors.

Women of the county have adopted two projects for 1943-44, a nutrition project to include proteins and substitutes and quick breads and a minor project for which the motto "Make Your Time Worth More," has been adopted.

Mrs. F. J. LaLonde is general chairman of the achievement program.

ATTEND RITES IN YORK, PA.

SENT TO ARMY

Three Sets of Brothers Leave Crawford County Homes.

BUCYRUS — Three Crawford county homes sent brothers into the U. S. armed service in the last county draft call. Of the brothers, two sets were 20-year-old twins.

Lloyd and Floyd Forshaw, sons of Mr. and Mrs. George Forshaw, Crestline, and Harl E. and Howard A. Hoffman were twin sons leaving from the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hoffman, Crestline R. D. 2.

From the Charles Billings home went Robert and Wilford Billings. A third Billings son, Richard, 18, has already passed his preliminary examination and is expected to be called for early induction.

GETS COMMISSION

BUCYRUS — Graduating from officers candidate school at Aberdeen, Maryland, Donald Schieber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Millard Schieber, has received his second lieutenant's commission in the U. S. army. He is spending a 10-day leave here before reporting back to Aberdeen for assignment.

FORMER LEGION HEADS HONORED BY GALION POST

Observance Staged For Past Commanders' Night; Plan Coffey Appearance.

GALION — Past Commanders' Night was observed by Scarbrough post, the American Legion, Monday night, when several past commanders of the post were present as honored guests. Among them were Elmer Kelly, now residing in Napoleon.

Tentative plans were made to bring Department Commander of Ohio Martin Coffey to Galion in the near future as a speaker. An open meeting is planned for the occasion, and this will be held at senior high school auditorium. No date for the affair has been set.

During the evening, Richard Rundell, veteran of the present World war who was recently honorably discharged from the Navy because of his health, was taken in as a new member.

The evening was closed with a spaghetti supper served by Mike Tuscan.

FUNERAL SET

BUCYRUS—Last rites will be held at 1:30 p. m. in the Munz funeral home Wednesday for Harold Wilson, 40, who died en route to City hospital Sunday after being kicked in the chest by a horse while engaged in his duties as a barn man at the Bucyrus Livestock Commission company barns, east of Bucyrus.

Rev. R. T. Lowman will conduct the services and burial will be made in Mt. Zion cemetery.

DAUGHTER BORN

GALION—Mr. and Mrs. William Auld of 502 South Union street are the parents of a daughter, born Sunday evening at City hospital.

CLOCK CATCHES UP WITH HER

ASHLAND — The time differences in various Ashland county schools and communities have caught up with one Savannah teacher in a big way.

Before the "two-time" business began, the teacher, who lives in Ashland, could ride to her job in Savannah in 15 minutes. All that is changed now. She leaves here at 9:15 a. m. Ashland time (EWT) to arrive in Savannah at 8:30 a. m. Savannah time (EST) which is good going, except that at the end of the school day the clock gets it all back by making it impossible for her to get back home in less than an hour and 15 minutes.

PREDICTS OHIOANS WILL NEED 200,000 FARM GARDENS IN '43

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Thirty-five Ohio counties, in co-operation with the Ohio Victory Garden council established by Gov. John W. Bricker under the state council of defense, have organized committees to arouse interest in home cultivation of essential foodstuffs, according to a report of J. H. Boyd, Ohio State university gardening specialist serving as executive director of the 1943 gardening program.

Additional counties are expected to follow suit in adopting the victory garden program. Boyd asserts, as agricultural agents of the Ohio extension service assume the task of organization.

Because 50 per cent or more of all commercially canned vegetables have been allocated for distribution to the armed forces and to lend-lease recipients, Ohioans this year must plant for their own consumption a minimum of 200,000 farm gardens and as many more as can be planted on suitable urban sites.

Extension service agents hold that such expansion of home gardening is imperative if consumers expect to make up for the reduced amounts of canned and dried vegetables which will be available under rationing.

Transportation difficulties will prevent the trucking and rail shipment of fresh vegetables, they warn, and Ohio commercial gardeners cannot increase their production enough to make up the loss.

ARRANGE RITES

BUCYRUS — Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Wednesday at the Munz funeral home for Mrs. Jess Klopfenstein, 73, who died at her home 239½ North Sandusky avenue, Monday morning. Burial will be in Oakwood cemetery. Rev. Carl Lieder of Martin Luther church, west of Bucyrus, will officiate.

Mrs. Klopfenstein's death resulted from a stroke suffered Saturday night. She had been in failing health for one year. She was born in Olmstead Falls, O., July 15, 1869.

Her only survivor is her husband, to whom she was united in marriage Feb. 25, 1905.

BOOK REVIEWED BY MISS LOIS M'KELLAR

Mansfield Librarian Reviews Max Hill's "Exchange Ship" at Mansfield Sorosis; Group Hears Violin Duets.

"EXCHANGE SHIP," by Max Hill, one of the first books written by one in Tokyo at the time of the declaration of war on the United States, was reviewed Monday afternoon by Miss Lois MacKellar, Mansfield librarian, at the Washington birthday luncheon of Mansfield Sorosis, held at the Women's Club at 1 p. m.

Hostesses for the luncheon at which 50 guests and members were present, included Mrs. W. W. Purdy, Mrs. John Angle, Mrs. Beth Albright, Mrs. Earl Paxton, Miss Anna Proctor, Miss Bertha Patterson and Mrs. A. E. Courtney.

An arrangement of red, white and blue carnations and candles centered the large table. Small tables were centered with red, white and blue sweet peas.

Violin duets were presented by Mrs. L. S. Houk and Mrs. E. D. Gibson, who were accompanied by Mrs. Robert Beatty at the piano. Their selections were "Three Little Symphonies," Opus No. 109, by Dancla, and 'Pastoral," by Nevin.

Mrs. H. L. Creveling introduced Miss MacKellar, when she gave her book review. She told something of the author's life, who was the head of the Associated Press bureau in Tokyo, and the first American in Tokyo to learn of the declaration of war. He was placed in solitary confinement for six months and given daily gruelings and threatened by the Japanese.

In the book, the author gave a number of pen sketches of prominent Japanese, such at Toyama, a former politician and leader of secret societies, and Tojo, the present premier. The most important part of the story was based on a trip back from Tokyo.

Mr. Hill discussed the attitude of the people on the boat, the stops made, and conditions on ship board. He mentioned, in conclusion, a talk made by Ambassador Grew to the children on board ship, who had never seen the United States. Ambassador Grew told them of the privileges and obligations to our nation. He also read Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

The luncheon meeting closed with group singing of "America" and "America, the Beautiful." Mrs. Albright will entertain the group at the next meeting, scheduled for March 9 at the Women's Club.

White Shrine Has Celebration On 30th Anniversary

The 30th anniversary of Naomi White Shrine, 10, was celebrated Monday evening in the Eagle hall, with Mrs. Edna Berlo, worthy high priestess, presiding for the meeting at 7:30 p. m.

The ceremonial was conducted for a class of new members, with Miss Mary Jane Bellore singing several vocal numbers. Past worthy high priestesses and past watchmen of shepherds were presented and several charter members were introduced.

During the business session, the group voted a contribution to the Red Cross drive. The program was in charge of Mrs. Thelma Hartman and members of her committee.

A playlet, "The Beauty Parlor," was presented by Mrs. Norma Miller, Mrs. Sara Ford, Mrs. Miriam Gross, Mrs. Mabel Sowers, Mrs. Louisa Ruhl, Miss Thelma Hartman and Miss Thelma Hursh.

Refreshments were served from an attractively decorated table, at which Mrs. Fern Wierman and Mrs. Hartman presided, dressed in Colonial costumes. The table was decorated in keeping with the occasion of George Washington's birthday, and was centered with a large cherry tree and log cabin, surrounded with miniature trees and logs.

In the afternoon members of Naomi White Shrine Circle met at 3 p. m., for a card party, with prizes being awarded to Mrs Mary McFadden in contract, and Mrs. Neva Denny in auction. Mrs. Frances Culler was in charge of the business meeting.

At 6 p. m. a covered-dish dinner was served to members and their families. Mrs. Denny and her committee planned the card party and dinner.

A committee, headed by Mrs Dolores Seybold, will make arrangements for the next Circle and dinner meeting on March 22 Memorial services and election of officers will follow at 7.30 p. m.

Sorority Meets At Women's Club

Mrs. Ruth Underhill entertained members of the Delta Kappa Gamma sorority Monday night at the Women's Club with a Sense and nonsense party. Assisting Mrs. Underhill was Miss Leona Miles, Miss Pearl Danback, and Miss Virginia Howard.

Powdered Noses Despite War

Anxious for the Japs to lose face, Uncle Sam's nieces will not have to sacrifice their own pretty faces for the cause. The war thus far has given no reason to imagine visions of glamor-less women, without lipstick, powder or creams, though WPB may limit the number of color varieties.

When priorities took certain materials once considered necessary in the preparation of beauty aids, cosmetic chemists didn't waste any time in providing alternates for the missing ingredients. They have studied, researched, tried and tested They have discovered that the formulas for beauty products can be changed without lessening the quality.

For years Italian talc was considered necessary in making face powder Today it can be just as fine, smooth and clinging with our own California talc Titanium oxide and calcium carbonate replace zinc oxide in face powders.

Lipsticks and cream rouges also seem to be slated for survival. The only essentials taken from them is the metal for containers. New holders made of pressed paper will work well enough and will show a touch of modernism as well as patriotism.

The not-so-humble soybean has come to the aid of the cosmetic industry too. Face creams are just as luscious and beneficial when made with soybean oil as with the coconut oil which was imported.

While cosmetic manufacturers are not allowed the same quantity of alcohol, there are partial solutions to that problem already. Some of the before-Pearl Harbor formulas of hand lotions have been changed to contain less alcohol. One has gone so far as to contain none of this vital material. Yet the lotion smooths rough hands to a delicate softness, and no one but a chemist would know that the formula has been changed

Even when we think of colognes, we needn't fear any immediate lack of these after-bath fresheners. There is still plenty on the counters, made and shipped under the manufacturers' legitimate alcohol quota. There is also a new cream cologne; "sans alcohol" and milky in appearance, which is actually kind to the skin - with no drying effect.

ZETA RHO CHAPTER HOLDS RUSH PARTY

THE FIRST in a series of rush parties to be given this season by the Zeta Rho chapter of the Delta Theta Tau sorority, was a dessert-bridge held Monday night in the club room of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. In observance of George Washington's birthday, the patriotic color scheme of red, white and blue was used throughout the evening.

A welcome to the guests present was given by Miss Betty Jane Yuncker, president of the chapter. Miss Vera Jo Robertson read a brief history of Delta Theta Tau, both as a local and a national organization, outlining its projects and contributions to the present national war effort.

Guests enjoyed playing bridge during the evening, which was played at nine tables. High score prizes of War stamps were awarded to Miss Barbara Chatlain and Mrs. Wilbur Shafer.

The sorority had as its guests for the evening the Misses Chatlain, Elsie McConnell, 'Aldrane Turk, Jessie Bryner, Polly Morrissey, Emily Burns, Claire Reinoehl, Nancy and Carolyn Cox, Marjorie Urich, Louise Sager, Kathryn Landfair, Elaine Downs, Mrs. Robert Lantz, Mrs. Fred Lewis, Mrs. Warren Rupp, Mrs. Wilbur Shafer, Mrs. James McConnell, the former Patricia Palmer of this city, who is now a resident of Independence, Kansas, and Miss Margaret Strickler, who is training with the WAVES in Iowa, were out of town guests.

Hostesses for the evening were the members of the membership committee. They are Miss Robertson, chairman, Miss Martha Pfaff, Miss Anna Jane Lloyd and Miss Yuncker.

The next meeting of the chapter will be a business meeting, scheduled for March 8 in the club rooms of the Warner building on Park avenue west.

Enameled Ware Is Manufactured With Great Care

Modern porcelain enameled utensils have as a base sheet steel, especially selected and cut into required sizes, then drawn and smoothed into the required shapes by huge drawing presses and spinning lathes. Many utensils require as many as eight operations for shaping alone. After the shaping, the rim is rounded for smoothness and better appearance. This rounded edge is called the "bead."

Handles, ears, and spouts of enameled utensils are formed separately and are welded into place. In preparation for enameling, the steel shapes are first "pickled." This operation is necessary so that the porcelain enamel coating can be applied to a perfectly clean surface.

Application of Enamel

The clean steel utensils are dipped into a creamy mass of enamel to receive their enamel coating. After dipping, they are expertly twirled and shaken by hand in order to get an even distribution of enamel of the right thickness over the entire surface. After the enamel is applied, the utensils are passed through an air-conditioned drying oven or chamber, and from there into a firing oven operating at from 1550 to 1700 degrees Fahrenheit. Each type of coat, whether multi-coat or one-coat ware, requires its own carefully controlled firing conditions.

The effective contrasting trim, which is a distinctive feature of modern porcelain enameled utensils, is applied by hand before the utensil is put through the furnaces for drying and final firing.

Biblical Program Presented Sunday At Club Meeting

Group singing of Biblical songs featured the regular meeting of the Mansfield Music Study club Sunday, at St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church. Miss Florence MacDonald presided.

The meeting was opened with the singing of "The Church's One Foundation," and "There's a Wideness In God's Mercy," following which Rev. Paul H. Saleste, pastor of the church, spoke on "Hymns and Music of the Bible."

Using passages from the Bible, he told of the importance of music in worship from the Creation through Christ's sojourn; and of the simple hymns of worship which have been handed down from generation to generation until Luther's time, when new works were written, and on down to the present time. Rev. Saleste told of the martial music stirring armies to victories, and said that even today leaders find music helps the morale of soldiers and civilans alike.

Rev. Herman L. Gilbert sang "The Earth Is the Lord's," by Lynes, accompanied by Mabel Zehner, and Louise Krause played "Intrpduction and Tocatta," by Woland, as an organ solo. Following this the audience sang "Stand Up For Jesus" and "Onward, Christian Soldier." Mrs. C. O. Anglin's solo was "The Lord Is My Shepherd," set to music by Malotte.

Mrs. Zehner's two organ selections were "Benedictus" by Rowley, and "Electra Ut Soll" by Dalher. The program was concluded with group singing of "America," "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," and "Faith of Our Fathers."

The date of the next meeting will be announced later.

Mrs. DeHaven Has Club Meeting

Seventeen members of the Child Guidance club met at the home of Mrs. Robert DeHaven, 606 South Main street, Monday evening. Associate hostesses were Mrs. Frank Breckenridge and Mrs. L. J. Weaver.

The business meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. LeRoy McGinty, and was followed by the program, which included a review of Dorothy Canfield Fisher's book, "The Bent Twig," by Mrs. Weaver, and a paper on the life of Luther Burbank, prepared and read by Mrs. Breckenridge.

At a late hour luncheon was served, with appropriate appointments in red, white and blue. Favors were small American flags.

Another meeting is planned for March 8, at the home of Mrs. Frank Gadfield, 197 West Park boulevard. Associate hostesses will be Mrs. McGinty and Mrs. J. M. Lehman.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, with Ease for Stomach, too

When constipation brings on discomfort after meals, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin, as directed on label or as your doctor advises, and feel world's better. Get genuine Dr. Caldwell's.

MRS. IRL FISHER HAS VICTORIAN PROGRAM

"Ohio Men In the White House" Topic of Speaker at Monday Meeting In Home of Mrs. O. D. Steil.

AN INTERESTING PROGRAM was presented at the meeting for 25 members of the Victorian club, and two guests, in the home of Mrs. O. D. Steil, 25 Pinecrest, Monday afternoon.

The hostesses served a salad-luncheon, buffet style, from a long table decorated in patriotic colors, in keeping with the birthday anniversary of George Washington.

Mrs. Irl Fisher was the principal speaker at the meeting, her topic being "Ohio Men In the White House." She told her audience that in a period of 80 years, from 1840 to 1920, eight presidents of the United States came from Ohio. Four of these, Ulysses S. Grant, Rutherford B. Hayes, James A. Garfield and Benjamin Harrison, were Civil war generals, elected by the soldiers' votes, she said. Mrs. Fisher said each of these men had outstanding merits of one kind or another.

"It is expected that these men were not always nominated and elected because of their conspicuous talents for that patriotic office," she said.

She told the group that William Henry Harrison was the first president from Ohio. "He took a leading part in the formation and government of the state," Mrs. Fisher said. "He was a scholar and a gentleman, as well as a statesman. He was sent to the United States senate, and in 1840 was a successful Whig candidate for president.

"William McKinley, Ohio's sixth president, also was a Civil war veteran, but not a general. Big, kind and gentle, with an easy friendliness of manner, he was pre-ordained for a career in Ohio and national politics. He was an exponent of protective tariff. The beloved McKinley was a saint in the minds of the great men of his party. He lived his everyday life as he lived his life as president. For full all-around consistency, McKinley was supreme," Mrs. Fisher said.

Ohio's two last men in the White House were William Howard Taft and Warren G. Harding, and speaking of them Mrs. Fisher said, "Taft spent the happiest years of his life as chief justice of the United States supreme court." In Marion a magnificent memorial of white, doric columns of Georgian marble, the finest of its kind in the United States, stands as a symbol of affection for Warren G. Harding."

In conclusion Mrs. Fisher said "all things considered, the Ohio men have set a remarkable record as chief executives of the nation in the perilous period from the Civil war to the Washington conference on post-World war disarmament."

Another meeting, in two weeks, will be at the Women's club, with Mrs. Alice P. Jennings as hostess for a salad-luncheon. Mrs. R. D. Campbell will be the speaker at this meeting, her subject to be "Sheridan and Sherman."

Columbus Guest Feted At Party

Mrs. Grace Phillips of Columbus, one of the sponsors of the magazine, "The Poesy Book," which is edited by Mrs. Helen Loomis Linham, was honored at a birthday luncheon in the home of Mrs. Linham, 51 Ausdale avenue, Monday. Guests were members of the Mansfield Prose and Poetry Guild.

During the afternoon a patriotic program was presented, including two papers, one on the life of George Washington, and the other on "The Life of Betsy Ross and Our First Flag," given by Miss Mae Wilkinson. Mrs. Maude Miller played a piano solo.

Another meeting of the Guild will be held March 19 at the Wilkinson home, 219 West Fifth street.

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This at Home

Saves You Big Dollars, and It's So Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home mixture your mother probably used, but, for real results, it is still one of the most effective and dependable, for coughs due to colds. Once tried, you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and 1 cup water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This makes a full pint of truly splendid cough medicine, and gives you about four times as much for your money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time.

And you'll say it's really amazing, for quick action. You can feel it take hold promptly. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Use Simple Effects to Look Smart

By MME. QUI VIVE

Girls with limited money to end on dry goods may imagine it, if they had plenty of cash, ey could be ladies of fashion. od dressing isn't as simple as it. It is the result of good te, an appreciation of beauti- colors, and understanding of e and suitability.

The dame who has fixed ideas, o sticks to clothes of a certain e, looks pretty much the same ir after year, no matter how lical style changes may be. e over-dressed one is either spicuous or frumpy. She's a non for decoration, goes in for tume jewelry in a big way, is er content with simple effects ich, after all, are the smartest. Extreme styles are only for men with flair. It takes a n, long-legged mannequin-like y with good features, lovely ek coiffure and graceful move- nts to get away with them. ey have to rate high as far as figure is concerned. "Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Katharine's head lifted alertly was the only indication that my father's statement had startled her, then she asked quietly:

"And who is going to tell Mary that she is to turn over to an understudy the role she created and has played with such success?"

Her manner showed her reluctance but my father ignored it.

"We can cross that bridge when we come to it," he said. "Tomorrow morning I will have Mary come over here. Margaret, please tell her tonight at the supper party that I wish to see her after her breakfast, and in the meantime you and Katharine will be planning details of the accident."

"May I offer an amendment to that, father?" I asked.

"Of course," he said. "What is it?"

"That Mary be told as soon as possible. After all, she is the one most concerned, and may need to alter other plans.

"I'd like to go over right away. I can be back in plenty of time for dinner, and in the meantime you can bring Katharine up to date about Georges."

"I'll do my best," my father said. "But, will you not find Noel there?"

"I shall make an opportunity to see Mary by herself," I said, and on the way to her apartment I found a solution of that problem.

Mary gave me a joyous welcome, but with her eyebrows questioned my reason for coming back so soon.

"Mary, I'm the victim of a housing shortage," I said, "and I've come to you for rescue. Oh, Noel! How are you? I didn't see you at first."

"I'm very well, thank you," he said perfunctorily. "But you won't see me long. I have some work to do before dinner comes up, so if you'll excuse me—"

"Surely, but sorrowfully," I told him smiling, and secretly rejoiced. As soon as he had gone I began to speak in low tones.

Gives Mary Details.

"First, Mary, I'll get my ostensible reason out of the way. Aunt Katharine has just come in from the farm. Georges has to have my bedroom with his make-up man until time for the Veritzen party. Is Noel going to the theater with you?

"Yes, since Steve is out of the cast tonight, he's going."

"I thought he would. Then may I bring Aunt Katharine over here after dinner, and may I dress here for the party? We'll go back again before you come home."

"You'd better wait till we get here," Mary said, "then there'll be no complications about the night chain. Steve might come in with a false key and be waiting for us."

"Of course we'll wait," I said. "Now when I tell you the real reason for my coming over, please don't exclaim, for Father doesn't want Noel to know anything about it."

She tensed to attention, and I quickly told of her father-in-law's insistence that, Redfield should be dropped at once, of my father's consternation at that edict because of his wish to use the actor as the "staked-out goat for the tiger," and of his proposal to Veritzen that Mary have a pretended accident to keep her from the theater until Redfield should finally receive his dismissal.

Knowing how absorbed she was in her career, I was not surprised that she flinched at this proposal, but when I finished she was smiling gallantly, and swept her hand out with a pretended hat in it.

"My best chapeau is doffed to Grandpa Spencer for his scheme," she said. "And, do you know, it won't be half bad to stay at home for a few days. And just to think of never having to play opposite Steve Redfield again!"

"What's that?" Noel said from the doorway. "What has happened?"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

A SIMPLE PRECAUTION

Ordinarily a double finesse in a suit can lose two tricks, if you are unfortunate enough to find the wrong opponent holding both of the cards against which you are playing. But if, at the time you try the first finesse, your own hand and the dummy contain no cards at all excepting that suit and one or more trumps, and the defenders are out of trumps, there is no chance at all of your losing two tricks. If the first finesse fails, the opponent will either have to lead back into the fork of your remaining tenace, or else will be obliged to shoot you a suit which you can ruff in the dummy while discarding the loser from your own hand.

	♠ A K Q J 10 6 4 ♥ None ♦ A Q 9 ♣ A K Q

(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♥	3 ♥
4 ♥	Pass	Pass	6 ♠

South had plenty of justification for taking the bit in his teeth as he did with that last bid, and it was too bad his playing did not match his bidding.

After ruffing the heart K lead, he saw that winning either of two diamond finesses would make his contract for him, and that to do this he would require two entries to the dummy. So he ruffed that first trick with the spade 10, carefully preserving the 4 and 6. The spade 3 settled the two missing trumps, then the 4 to the 8 gave him an entry to try a finesse of the diamond 9. West won with the J and returned the club 8 to the A. Now the spade 6 to the 7 put him in dummy again, and the diamond Q was finessed, losing to the K and putting him down.

What a cinch this contract really was. After ruffing the heart lead and scoring the spade A, he should have played his three clubs before going to the dummy for the try of the first diamond finesse. When West won with the J, he would have had to lead back into the diamond A-Q, or else a heart or club, which could have been ruffed in dummy while the diamond Q was being discarded.

Tomorrow's Problem.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Feb. 24.

Although there are several configurations of important planets that indicate adverse conditions, of a thwarting, impending or hazardous type, yet others serve to encourage initiative, audacious ideas and well-directed plants. Should these lead into new channels of large scope there is prospect of worthwhile success. Calm judgment should lead to productive and clever culminations. Dare to be original or bold. Maintain composure and amiability in personal relations.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year, the ultimate success of which depends upon natural resourcefulness. Strife, emotional impulses or malevolent antagonisms would prove hazardous.

A child born on this day may be resourceful, energetic and progressive but may defeat itself by ill temper, turbulent or over aggressive conduct. Its private life is also subject to deception or reversals.

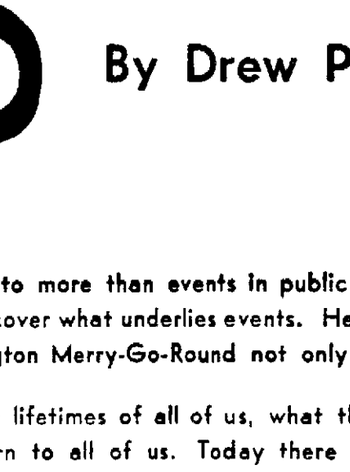
The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND



By Drew Pearson

The nation's foremost column of report and interpretation of the nation's affairs. It penetrates through the news to the basic facts and factors, giving you a picture of events that is truly three-dimensional.

DREW PEARSON is alert to more than events in public affairs. He seeks constantly—and with uncanny success—to discover what underlies events. He discloses—crisply, vividly, unreservedly—in his column The Washington Merry-Go-Round not only the news but what makes the news.

Today as never before in the lifetimes of all of us, what the governments of the world are doing is of personal, direct concern to all of us. Today there rages a world struggle more fateful in immediate effect and in consequence than any the world has yet seen. A prime power in that struggle is Washington. How Washington acts and reacts is vital. To know both and to understand why, follow The Washington Merry-Go-Round.

Unless Uncle Sam steps in with a finger crooked in the come-hither manner before May 2, Mansfield will have a home-town boy pitching in class AA professional baseball this spring.

Stan Partenheimer, who started out last season with Canton Terriers in the Mid-Atlantic league, and wound up with Oneonta, N. Y. in the Canadian - American circuit, has been signed by the Louisville Colonels of the American Association for next summer.

But it may be a race between the army and the national pastime. Stan is enlisted in the army reserve at Wooster college.

Young Partenheimer, he's only 20 years old and a freshman at Wooster, took advantage of two new rules to get in a season of basketball with the Scots this winter.

One rule permitted use of freshmen on athletic teams, the other recognized professionals only in the sport in which they had become professional. A very sensible rule, since it isn't likely that Partenheimer's acceptance of money for playing baseball helped his basketball ability one little particle.

Quiz Dept.: What does a basketball player throw that a baseball player shouldn't put his foot in? Buckets!

Partenheimer wants to finish this term of school before reporting to the Colonels, and has obtained permission from the Louisville club to condition himself at Wooster.

Term ends May 11, but Stan has been ordered to report for a week-end of observation May 2 when the Colonels play the Mudhens at Toledo.

Partenheimer's brother Hal, who used to play second base for Zanesville in the Mid-Atlantic, is now Ensign Hal Partenheimer of the navy, stationed at Miami, Fla.

Far as this department is informed, Stan is the only Mansfield boy going into organized ball this season.

And instead of leading the league with only 95 points, Union's Jack Hammett was way out there with 113, an average of 14.1 points per game.

And Bellville's Joe Watkins moved up into a fifth place tie with Harold Hammer of Madison with 66 points.

Chips Go Down on Schoolboy Titles.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Season's records go into the discard after this week's play in Ohio's scholastic basketball scrap, as the teams start all over from "scratch" in the chase for state championships.

Some of the 900 Class B quintets already are among the casualties, having been eliminated in county title events, but the 250 Class A teams have the rest of this week for preliminary skirmishing before the chips go down.

The week-end ending March 6, however, will see all the Class A teams have the rest of this week for preliminary skirmishing before the chips go down.

The week-end ending March 6, however, will see all the Class A teams, and all the Class B survivors of county tournaments, clashing in sectional play. The following week, with the exception of the huge Class A affair at Kent, will find the district meets winding up with 16 qualifiers in each class named for regional play. The Kent meet ends March 17.

The regionals, slated March 20 in Class A at Zanesville, Kent, Bowling Green and Dayton, and Class B at Athens, Kent, Bowling Green and Springfield, will designate one survivor from each to come to Columbus March 27 for the one-day state finals.

A new Class B champion is assured, Somerset surrendering its 1942 laurels by failing to survive the semi-finals of the Perry county tournament. However, the Class A champion Xenia Central team is in the midst of a 12-game winning streak after dividing its first four tilts, and the Greene countians are expected to put in a heavy bid to repeat.

The coach of the 1942 Class B champs, Frank Sowecke, also may be back. This year he's coaching the Class A Branesville team which has won 16 of 19 starts, and one of his forwards, Dick Wehr, has scored 414 points to set the scholastic pace.

The Class A contingent boasts only a half-dozen undefeated teams. North Canton (state Class B champion in 1939) leading the pack with 18 straight contests. Joe Esmont, former Canton McKinley and Ohio U. star, is coaching the club. Others in the unbeaten list are Martins Ferry, 17; Defiance 16; Bexley and Greenfield McClain, 12; Cleveland South, 11.

Class B threats, all undefeated, include: Plain City, 23; Middlepoint 17, Creston, 16; Twinsburg, West Liberty and Champion, 15; Lorain Clearview, Bloomingburg and Dresden, 14, and these with lesser streaks. Pickaway township, Utica, Webster township, New Albany, Arlington, Cygnet, Newport, Sandusky, St. Marys, and Euclid Shore.

Middlepoint has won 35 straight over a two-year stretch in regular season play, while Lorain Clearview has copped 36 straight against a loss in the quarter finals of last season's state meet.

Ohio Fighter Wins 2 Bouts

Youngstown Football Star Shines In Ring.

CHICAGO (AP) The heavy-fisted chesty lads in the higher weight brackets ignite their dynamite tonight in the second session of amateur boxing's biggest punch bowl the golden gloves tournament of champions.

Three former champions are on the card, two of them in the 147-pound division—Morris Corona of Fort Worth, the 1942 champion of the 135 class, and Tony Ancona of Fort Riley, Kas., the 1940 lightweight king. The other champion is lightheavyweight Tom Attra of Fort Worth.

A favorite in the 160-pound division is Cleveland's Sampson Powell, a national A A U champion.

Wiry and husky fellows representing 25 cities kicked up the resin dust in two action-packed rings during last night's opening bouts before 7,000 in Chicago stadium.

There were several upsets. Frankie Montoya, 118, of Fort Worth defeated Leroy Jackson, a national A A U champion of Cleveland. Then Montoya was eliminated by hard-hitting Gene Roberts of Camp Grant, Ill.

It took Tony Joe Janiro of Youngstown, Ohio, to capture the fancy of the crowd. Janiro, only 16, and the youngest competitor in the meet fought in the 128-pound division.

Critics liked the looks of this pink cheeked high school football player. He showed an assortment of blows and a superiority in counter punching in winning two bouts.

In advancing to the third round the baby-faced battler from Youngstown first disposed of Proctor Heinhold of Oklahoma City and then defeated Burtrand D. White, a Chicago negro.

BIVINS FAVORED IN LIGHT-HEAVY BATTLE

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Recognition by the National Boxing association as light heavyweight champion "for the duration" will go to the winner of tonight's 15-round rubber match between Jimmy Bivins and Anton Christoforidis.

The former Cleveland jewelry store porter ruled a 2-1 favorite to take his Greek opponent into camp.

Montgomery Beats Lulu Constantino

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — Bob Montgomery, again a ranking challenger for the lightweight boxing title by virtue of his defeat of Lulu Costantino last night, is going to become a defense worker for the duration.

After gaining an unanimous 10-round decision over the "Fancy Dan" New Yorker before 9,041 paying fans at Convention hall, the Philadelphia negro told Promoter Herman Taylor he will start work next Monday at the Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock company.

"He will get about 10 days leave whenever he fights," Taylor explained.

Montgomery was the "Bobcat" of old in ramming home a savage body attack that forced his lighter opponent to retreat. Constantino weighed 129½ to Montgomery's 134¾.

Spectators showered the ring with cigar butts and cigarets when Montgomery kept hitting Costantino after the bell had ended the fourth round.

The gross gate was $19,793.25.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—Bob Montgomery 134¾, Philadelphia outpointed Lulu Costantino 129½, New York (10).

BALTIMORE—Lee Q. Murray, 199, Norwalk, Conn., knocked out Buddy Walker, 192½, Columbus, O. (6).

NEW YORK—Steve Belloise, 135¼, New York, stopped Joe (Butch) Lynch, 161, Plainfield, N. Y., (5).

NEW YORK —(AP)— Canisius, one of the first colleges to drop football after the Army's "no time" announcement, professes to have no qualms about it and is going ahead with other sports, especially basketball, where it has a big-time rating . . . Princeton eliminated formal crew competition because all three rowing coaches had joined the armed forces . . . and maybe because there was no "A" card for the coaching launch.

When Bobby Widholm, of the Ice Follies, took his physical exam for the naval air force, the doctors nearly turned him down because he could walk a straight line immediately after a test that makes most candidates dizzy as a whirlwind . . . he got an okay only after explaining his skating act, which calls for plenty of rapid spinning.

Shutouts Rule In C-League

Four Goose Eggs Mark Loop Scoring Sheets.

Shutouts were the rule in the Commercial "C" bowling league at Colony alleys last night with the league-leading Tellings Sealtest, Sons of Herman, Independent Towel Supply, and Hecht & Casey turning in 3-0 wins.

Kirchbaum led the scoring parade with a 607 total, while Mensch rolled high game of 258 on the heels of a 123 effort.

Hoosiers Cop 11th Victory

Buckeyes Thump Wolves In Second Half Splurge.

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Branch McCracken, Indiana university basketball coach, was convinced today that he picked the wrong year to develop a "once in a life time" quintet.

The Hoosiers won their 11th Big Ten game in 12 starts last night when they trimmed Minnesota 40 to 28. But the triumph served only to tighten their hold on second place and focus attention on Indiana's runner-up complex and Illinois' undefeated record.

In other games Northwestern edged Wisconsin 56 to 54 in an overtime, Ohio State bested Michigan 53 to 38 and Iowa trounced Chicago 62 to 34. Illinois and Purdue were idle.

Indiana closes its conference season next Monday night against Purdue, but even a victory in that contest won't help the Hoosier cause unless MacCracken's men can receive help from Northwestern. The Wildcats face the pacesetting Illinois team Saturday at Chicago.

If Indiana finishes second it will mark the fifth consecutive time since McCracken took over the Hoosier coaching job that his proteges have been in the runner-up spot.

Ohio State staged a great second half splurge to thump Michigan. After the score was tied 17 to 17 at half-time, the Bucks cut loose to gain the decisive triumph.

REFEREE ROUSES BOXER TO VICTORY

BALTIMORE, Md. —(U.P.)— Lee Murray, negro heavyweight from Norwalk, Conn., stung when the referee threatened to expel him from the ring for stalling, knocked out Buddy Walker, another negro from Columbus, O., in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round fight here last night.

Murray had been chased around the ring for four rounds by Walker without attempting to fight back. Warned that he would be put out of the ring, he charged into Walker in the fifth, drove him into the ropes with a hard, straight left in the sixth and finished him off with a right to the chin.

DUROCHER REPORTS FOR ARMY MONDAY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Leo Durocher, Brooklyn Dodger manager, reports for induction on Monday.

The scrappy manager who brought Brooklyn its first pennant in 21 years in 1941 originally was classified 3A, but was reclassified 1A on Feb. 16 after a physical examination. Now local board No. 133 in Brooklyn has ordered him to report at 7 a. m. Monday morning for his final army examination. He will be 38 on July 27 and is married but has no children.

County Loop Champs Upset In First Round

Warriors Trip Rams, Lucas Edges Lexington, Jays Take Plymouth

THE EXPERTS, for once, were right: this year's Richland county high school basketball tournament, which got under way yesterday at Mansfield high school gym, brought together the most evenly balanced array of bucketball talent the tournament has seen in years.

And the evenly matched teams produced cage thrillers throughout yesterday's afternoon and evening hoop program, thrillers that saw the county league champion Madison Rams upset by a smart, scrappy Ontario quint; Union and Lucas, tied for second place in the league standings, barely holding out for victories over Butler and Lexington; and a hot-shooting Plymouth club swamp Shiloh, and then cool off to be nosed out by Bellville's surprising young Blue Jays.

What is more important than yesterday's thrillers is the fact that the even balance holds good for semi-final and championship Saturday afternoon and night, and the race for tournament honors and the right to represent Richland county in the Class B joust at Bascom the following week, is still wide open.

Tangling in the semi-final battles Saturday will be Ontario vs. Union at 1:30 p. m. and Lucas vs. Bellville at 2:30. Winners of these two games will go to Bascom, and will battle Saturday night at 9 o'clock for the tournament championship, while losers meet at 8 o'clock in the consolation round.

Scores of the first round of play yesterday were:

Plymouth 40, Shiloh 24.
Ontario 40, Madison 35.
Union 36, Butler 32.
Lucas 28, Lexington 26.
Bellville 36, Plymouth 32.

Picking the best game of the tournament after the first round was played is almost as tough a job as picking the winners before the games, but most unbiased fans seeing the teams for the first time settled on the Ontario-Madison battle.

However, it may be best to report the games in the order they were played.

Taking a narrow 8-7 lead in the first quarter, Plymouth's Pilgrims added steadily to their margin over Shiloh's Drummer Boys, paced by Captain Bill Reed's sensational one-handed hooping.

Reed chalked up 21 points on nine buckets and three free tosses for the highest single-game mark of the tournament's opening round. And Plymouth boosted its lead to 18-11 at the half and 34-17 at the third quarter.

Then came the Ontario-Madison shindig, and it was a fast, scrappy imbroglio from start to finish. Both teams were battling for the ball all the time, and they were sprawled over the floor as much as they were on their feet.

It was the right battle strategy for Ontario, the Warriors limiting Madison to very few shots in the first half, and the only buckets scored by the Rams were on one-handed flips and long shots.

Ontario took an 8-4 lead at the quarter, and jumped it to 24-12 at the half. Madison began hitting in the third quarter, with little Harold Hammer finding the hoop on one-handed shots from the circle, and the third-quarter score was 33-25.

But Ontario had an ace-in-the-hole, the cool play of Captain Jack Elliott, who led his teammates in moving the ball around and stalling for time to successfully halt the Madison threat.

The game saw Bader, Eckles and Hammer of Madison, and Boleratz and Gage of Ontario foul out.

Jack Hammett, league leading scorer, marked up eight points in the first quarter to start Union off on a 15-7 lead over Butler, and the Indians boosted the margin to 23-12 at the half. A spirited Butler comeback in the second half caught Union flat footed as the Bulldogs brought the count to 23-30 at the third quarter and narrowed it down to four points in the last stanza.

Hammett got 18 points, but his real value was in his work under the defensive hoop where he not only handled most of the rebounds, but knocked many a Butler shot out of the air.

Lucas and Lexington put on the closest thriller as they took turns in hot shooting streaks. Lucas held a 4-1 lead at the quarter, but Lexington rallied early in the second period for a 5-4 margin before Lucas started again toward a 13-7 advantage at the half.

Lexington closed the gap, and Lucas opened it again in the third stanza, which ended with the Cubs in front 22-17. Then Kaylor fouled out at one minute, 20 seconds of the fourth quarter, and Harvey and Barger also went out on fouls with five minutes left to go and the score 26-20. Clever made good on two free throws and it was 26-22. Wade scored under the basket and

This was what they had come o; and for the most part he had topped struggling. They rarely uarreled any more — it wasn't eally worth the bother. They ust lived along, and talked in ionosyllables, and were a habit o each other, and a shadow at ach other's side.

He could look back and see just hen it had begun. The affair ith Bonnie had been one thing; heir marriage had been quite nother. Sometimes he thought, If Ruby hadn't died . . ." Beause that had been the dividing ne, and in a way the reason.

That was the summer of 1931. le had lost the last thing he oved—first Rosalie, then Ruby—nd why was it that this resulted i his marriage to Bonnie, whom e hated, he would never exactly nderstand. He had been almost n the point of breaking up with er when Ruby died—and sudenly now instead he was saying, We might as well get married, I uppose." It was a part of the range flatness and the unreality that everything had for him or a long time; and in a way it as the self-inflicted pain to ive out pain.

And all the rest was work, as e had told Rosalie today; all ie remainder of his story up to ate was work—it was a cut-and-ried success story. Sometimes he ead it himself in interviews, and ought, "God, it sounds grim"; nd sometimes, in the mirror, he w the record it had left. "The eat stone face," he said to him-lf once.

It wasn't quite like that. It as true that his face had hard-ned; it had become a strong face, ll of purpose and determination, nd no longer merry.

Radio had needed talent, and he had begun supplying it out of his night-club contacts, on a commission basis. He had discovered new personalities for radio, and presently this had become so profitable that he had quit the cabarets altogether, and opened up a Broadway office as a radio agent. "His top client," the interviews always said, "was his wife Bonnie Roberts, whose satirical and witty monologues were at that time written by Hadley himself."

And that was still the past; those were the years from 1931 to 1936. Now he was program director of a big network. It was an all-engrossing job, on which it was not unusual for him to work 12 hours a day, six days a week. And often Sunday too. Even after Hobey knocked off for the day, he went around the corner to the bar where everybody from the office went, allegedly to relax and unwind, but actually to go on talking, thinking, breathing radio.

So that was the way it was with him—there was Bonnie and there was work. Occasionally, in the rare moments when he thought about himself, it seemed to him that the Hobey who had once been a human being—who had sung to people and made them laugh, who had been capable of happiness and unhappiness—that Hobey had long since been destroyed in the grind of those two millstones, the upper and the nether, Bonnie and work.

It was about eleven o'clock when he took Rosalie home from the restaurant where they had talked so long—and where he had said so little of all this. After he left her, he got back into the same taxi and drove uptown; he didn't specially want to go home, but he had given his home address for lack of any other plan, and he didn't revise it on the way. Now he kept thinking of all the things Rosalie had told him, and of all the things he hadn't thought to ask her—and of other things, too, that he had thought of, right enough, and longed to ask, but that some reserve born of their years apart had restrained him from putting into words. Was she in love with anybody? That was the chief question; it had occurred to him uncounted times in the few hours they were together, and all of his spoken inquiries had stemmed from it in a way. Somehow there was a curious comfort in the fact that she had had no date at all this evening; she had just been on her way home when they met.

Her apartment house was on lower Fifth avenue, and it wasn't one of the newer houses, and he remembered that she had said the apartment itself was very small—only three rooms, of which the third was Peter's. He kept reviewing all the little facts she had given him, adding them together to make a picture of her present life. She hadn't complained of anything; she had merely mentioned her fallen fortunes in passing; she had either omitted or made light of all the difficulties she must have undergone—and must still be undergoing. He wondered whether now she was completely self-supporting, or whether the factory in Brockton, under the management of the new stepfather, was yielding sufficient profits to pay for Peter's schooling, for example. He even wondered whether Bailey had left any insurance. Her job here in New York was something the same as the first one in Boston — receptionist — except that here it was a private hospital. He knew it couldn't pay more than —well, what? He tried to figure. Tomorrow at the office he must find out what receptionists got, just for the sake of instance and comparison.

So he arrived at his own apartment house, finally, and his own numbered awning, and the two potted shrubs that flanked the doorway and the sleek lobby beyond. Going up in the elevator he looked at his watch again. Eleven twenty. Bonnie wouldn't be there —she would have gone to supper somewhere, as she always did after her broadcast, which was from ten to ten thirty. Some of the little butterfly boys, or possibly several of them, would be with her.

She must have left the apartment in a hurry, as she always did; she and Eulalie had gone rushing out, bound for her dressing room at the studio, leaving things in their usual chaos here, and all the lights on. She liked bright lights, and the whole living room glared at him now as he came in, and the mirrors were blinding. He went across and opened the French doors onto the terrace, to air out the stuffy steam-heat smell, and the dead smoke. This is no life, he thought, and never was. Look at this place.

He heard the last four words in his own mind, and he thought, That's a good idea, because you really got so used to things you didn't look, and didn't see them any more. He stood still now, and looked around this living room deliberately and carefully and slowly. He made his mind a blank; he didn't think at all, but simply saw.

Suddenly he had to get outside and he stepped out onto the terrace, in the autumn cold. It was a fine night, with the New York sky still very blue — a kind of black-blue now. He looked downtown, at the long avenue strung with the beads of traffic, and at the big and little buildings, and the scrubwomen's lights in skyscrapers. He thought, it's different with most people. The trouble with most people is that they never know what they want—whereas I've always known, exactly—all my life—and never got it. And that's been my trouble.

He thought of Rosalie's still young and lovely face across the table, and her white throat rising from the shallow V of the black businesswoman's dress, and her exciting voice, and the same sudden smile that she had always had. He knew there was no real or definite promise in their having met today—none from her point of view, that was; and none he could rely on. She had said several little things that had made some allusion to future meetings—"Wait till you see Peter"; that had been one of them—but those were just the things that old friends said; they were just pleasant; they committed her to nothing. When he had left her at her apartment house he had said, "Are you in the phone book?" and "May I call you?" and Rosalie had said, "Yes, do," but with reserve, with mere politeness—because she couldn't say "No, don't"—and with the memory of Bonnie in her eyes.

So there was nothing really, there was no encouragement; there was no reason or justification for deciding—as he did now, suddenly, and irrevocably, and at long last—to rid himself of Bonnie, no matter what might happen after. It was as though this didn't involve Rosalie at all; it was a problem between Bonnie and himself, long overdue for settling. Seeing Rosalie again had crystallized it, that was all. Even if she never let him see her again, he must settle it anyway.

He thought of Bonnie's coming home. It would be later, and she would be a little drunk—she always drank too much—and she would be contentious, because liquor made her that way. It would be better not to try to talk to her until tomorrow. This thought was hard to bear, because impatience rode him now like all the thousand furies of all these many years. It was absurd to have this feeling that he couldn't wait a minute longer.

He thought, She'll be all right. She may not even make a fuss. We're just a habit to each other—and a hateful habit, on both sides. She doesn't need me; I've outlived my usefulness to her; she makes as much money as I do—last year she made nearly twice as much, all told—and furthermore she'd saved it all—and this was true. From the beginning, from the days of Bonnie's first earnings at the Club Mallory in 1928, she had saved every cent she made, and lived on Hobey's money. Men should support women, she had said; changing this edict later to "husbands have to support their wives." Not that he had ever argued that, because he hadn't. He had been agreeable and willing; and now he was glad.

It struck him suddenly that he was free—he was already free. He could walk out of here this minute, and never see this place again. He could just go. His debt to her, if he ever had a debt to her, was long repaid; and there was nothing now to hold him here. There wasn't even anything for them to talk about, when all was said and done. He wanted a divorce, and he would have it. He would simply tell her. Tomorrow in the daylight, when he was sane and she was sober, they would discuss the terms — and he would make them generous; and he knew that it was only a question of making them generous enough, nothing else would trouble Bonnie, only that, and he could make that right.

She went to Reno in December. She had lawyers there and lawyers in New York, and all of them conferred with Hobey's own lawyer—it seemed you had to have one—who in turn conferred with Hobey, and said, with eloquence and gestures, that never in his thirty years of handling divorces had he seen a man so bent on what amounted almost to financial suicide. "Look," he kept saying, in the patient moments that alternated with these wild-eyed ones, "you don't need to pauperize yourself to take care of this woman. She's earning more than you are—she's got plenty of her own—she was unfaithful to you, as we know . . ." There were a lot of arguments like that, and all of them were valid, but Hobey only said, "Let me worry about the money. I'm giving her what I promised her. Just do it that way, and let's get this damn thing over with."

Just before Bonnie left for Reno, and just before the story broke in the papers, he had told Rosalie that the divorce was to be filed. "Now I can tell you the whole thing," he said to her. "I couldn't before." But actually he was brief; she wouldn't want a detailed narrative, any more than he wanted to give her one; and in the end he told her very little of his life with Bonnie. All of that could come out later, if Rosalie ever really wished to know. Now he said merely, "It was always a mistake, that marriage—my mistake as much as hers—and we were never happy, not even at first. We always made each other wretched. So this had to happen some time. I mean, the final break itself is new, but the reasons for it are years old."

He said that several times, and stressed it. He didn't want Rosalie to feel responsible.

Now she would let him see her —she had been reluctant until now, because of Bonnie. "Am I being quaint about it?" she had said. "I'm sorry, Hobey. But honestly, I just don't think I ought to see you—when I don't see her. I mean it isn't as though we were all three friends." And Hobey hadn't been able to tell her then that the divorce was imminent, for fear—an almost superstitious fear—that something would go wrong. There had been a delay in Bonnie's departure, because she had had to finish out a radio contract; and it wasn't until that was over, and she was practically on the plane, that he could believe himself that it was really true.

THEATERS

Hitler's Children

"Hitler's Children," the vivid story of conditions inside Germany, presents a startling revelation of what a Hitler victory would mean to the United States. It continues showing at the Ohio. The story deals with an American schoolmaster (Kent Smith) in Berlin, Bonita Granville, his pupil and later his assistant, and a Nazi youth (Tim Holt) who is imbued with Hitlerism. It shows the terrifying work of the dreaded Nazi Gestapo. Some of the scenes in the film will long be remembered.

Honeymoon

Ginger Rogers and Cary Grant co-star in the Madison's top hit, "Once Upon a Honeymoon." It is the story of two Americans (Ginger and Cary) and a German baron, who is actually a Nazi spy sent to small countries to prepare the German invasion plans. Ginger marries the baron, much to the disapproval of Cary, but later finds out the truth about him. "Truck Busters," is the second feature. It co-stars Richard Travis and Virginia Christine.

Never Lovelier

"You Were Never Lovelier," starring Rita Hayworth and Fred Astaire, continues at the Park today. The story of South American romance, it is featured by Astaire's dancing, Miss Hayworth's charms, and the music of Jerome Kern. "The Falcon's Brother" with George Sanders and Tom Conway, completes the bill.

Wake Island

Brian Donlevy and Robert Preston play the leads in the Ritz' top attraction, "Wake Island." It is the story of the historic 15-day battle on the small Pacific island, and presents a dramatic picture of the heroic work of United States Marines. "I Take This Oath," starring Joyce Compton, is the second attraction.

Your Federal Income Tax

NO 44: DATE OF FILING

Income tax returns of citizens and residents of the United States are required by law to be made on or before the 15th day of the third month following the close of the taxable year, which for most individuals is the calendar year. Accordingly, returns for the calendar year 1942 must be filed not later than midnight of Monday, March 15, 1943.

Returns by nonresident alien individuals must be made on or before the 15th day of the sixth month after the close of the fiscal year, or on or before June 15, 1943, for the calendar year 1942.

If placed in the mail, the returns should be posted in ample time to reach the collector's office, under ordinary handling of the mails, on or before the due date. The envelope should bear proper postage and be addressed to the "Collector of Internal Revenue" at the correct address in the district where the taxpayer's legal residence or principal place of business is located. If he has neither, the return should be mailed to the collector of internal revenue at Baltimore, Md.

Persons in the military and naval service outside the United States, or on sea duty, and persons in enemy-occupied or besieged territory are granted an extension to file, without penalty, up to the 15th day of the third month from the close of the war or their return to the United States.

Also, persons who during any period of time after December 6, 1941, have been continuously outside the Americas for more than 90 days are allowed an extension of time in which to file returns, and make payments of tax, amounting to the period of such absence plus 90 days.

Grouchy? Maybe You Need More Vitamins In Diet

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Nellie Thompson, Ohio State university nutrition specialist, says that folks who are given to laziness, hysterics, grouchiness, and other mental disorders had better check up on their consumption of Vitamin B. Much of the old time demand for spring tonics, she says, was caused by a restricted winter diet which was lacking in this essential vitamin.

Foods which are rich in Vitamin B and which are to be preferred to pills as sources include lean pork, liver and other meat organs, whole grains, dried beans and peas, soybeans, and nuts, particularly peanuts.

Since the body does not store Vitamin B, Miss Thompson urges that housewives and cooks include some Vitamin B-carrying food in every meal. She warns that both overcooking and reheating reduce the amounts originally found in foodstuffs.

Farmer Loses Sleep To Make New Buck Rake.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Here's the way one Perry county farmer solved his labor problem. He wrote the agricultural extension service at Ohio State university that he was being forced to do a one-man job of making hay and with a buck rake.

He wrote that he was unable to buy a buck rake due to restrictions on new farm machinery and asked for plans to enable him to build one.

"I figure I'll have just about a half hour a day to build it," the farmer wrote. "I expect to gain this half an hour by sleeping six and a half hours daily instead of seven, so please send the plans promptly."

The plans were sent from the university's agricultural engineering department. A survey recently showed that the use of this tool, originally devised by an Ohio farmer, saves from 30 to 50 per cent of the labor required for making hay.

THIS WASN'T A PLEASURE TRIP

TARENTUM, Pa. — We'll call him John Doe for we wouldn't dare reveal his real name.

He was driving along when he was stopped by an OPA agent. "Are you driving for pleasure?" he was asked.

"Well, I'll tell you," he snapped. "I'm going to visit my mother-in-law, and if you call that pleasure, you can take my blankety-blank ration book!"

They didn't take the book.

Pennsylvania Man Shot by Grocer During Argument.

ELWOOD, Ind. (INS) — Harrison Holmes, 50-year-old grocer, was held today in the killing of Morris Solomon, 48, of Sharon, Pa., who was shot to death during an argument over rationing. Authorities quoted Holmes as saying:

"Solomon complained about the rationing and then went back to my meat counter and complained about the amount of fat on the meat I was cutting. This went on for about an hour and I finally ordered him out of the store, but he wouldn't go.

"I got my gun and told him I wasn't kidding; he had to get out. But he just stuck his hands in his pockets and laughed." One shot was fired, hitting Solomon in the head.

GALION RELATIVES PRESENT AT OPEN CHURCH WEDDING IN AKRON

GALION—Several Galion relatives attended the wedding in Akron, Sunday, of Marianne Foltz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph N. Foltz of that city, to Cpl. Paul Gwinner, son of M. F. Gwinner of Galion.

The ceremony took place in an open church service at the United Brethren church, there, Rev. Morris D. Kidwell officiated for the double ring service.

Nuptial music was furnished by Mrs. Philip Musser, organist, and Miss Janice Eckard, soprano, friend of the bride. The ushers were Daniel Foltz, brother of the bride, and Willis Eckard.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length white wool frock. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Willis Eckard.

Cpl. Gwinner was attended by his brother-in-law, Howard Thayer of Galion.

At the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony, a reception was held for seventy-five relatives and friends. Presiding at the table were Mrs. Howard Thayer of Galion, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Dorothy Dill, a friend of the bride.

The former Miss Foltz attended Otterbein university at Westerville, and was associated with the Phi Beta Tau sorority. She has been employed in the office of the Nohil Shoe company in Akron. Cpl. Gwinner also attended Otterbein university prior to his enlistment in the army. He was affiliated with the Sigma Delta Phi fraternity. He was graduated from Galion high school.

Later in the week, the couple will leave for Denver, Colorado, where Cpl. Gwinner is stationed at Fitzsimmons General hospital. He and his bride are visiting relatives in Galion and Akron this week.

OHIO TO GET NEW WHISKIES

Liquor Director Orders Bulk Supplies To Be Bottled Under Special Brands.

By Associated Press

COLUMBUS — Brand new brands of whisky, bought by the barrel and bottled especially for Ohio, will be delivered next week.

Don A. Fisher, acting state liquor director, said he had ordered 38,000 cases of barrel whisky from Kentucky and was negotiating for 73,000 more from other interests.

Some of the Kentucky shipment is scheduled for delivery next week after it is bottled by rectifying plants, Fisher asserted. It will carry new brands names because it is bulk stock.

The barrel whisky is obtained from "brokers and private individuals who invested in whisky warehouse receipts before the liquor shortage," the liquor chief declared.

Fisher reported that "not more than 50 per cent" of 200,000 cases ordered for February had been delivered to Ohio, where liquor supplies have not kept pace with growing wartime demands for several months.

The liquor department also is considering a suggestion made at a senate committee hearing that the state buy whisky by the barrel and do its own bottling, the director said.

The senate liquor control committee last night killed a resolution proposing an investigation of the state's liquor shortage.

Fisher last week told the committee that after whisky manufacture was halted distillers "locked up" 180,000,000 gallons for post-war consumption and began rationing the remainder of their supplies.

3 BURGLARIES

Two Residences and Trucking Company Entered.

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson and his deputies today were investigating three burglaries in the Mansfield area, at least two of which were committed by the same burglar who had muddy feet, officers said.

The same procedure was used in entering the home of Harry Sargent, Grace street, and E. R. Briner, Ninth avenue, Sunday night, Deputy Sheriff C. C. Gongwer said.

The burglar entered through the kitchen window at the Sargent home, obtaining several packs of cigarets, and through the basement window of the Briner residence, where a gold watch and a child's bank containing $3 were reported missing.

A check protector was stolen from the office of the Pringle Trucking company, Springmill road, Sunday night or Monday, a representative of the firm reported last night.

Officers said muddy footprints were left on the floors and walls of the two residences.

TOO REALISTIC

Youth Killed While Practicing Commando Tactics.

AKRON — (AP) — Robert C. Dabney, jr., an 18-year-old Akron university freshman, will never see action on the battlefields for which he and his friends trained so realistically.

Detective Gobel Waddell reported young Dabney was wounded in the head yesterday as he and five companions simulted commando tactics with blackened faces and small calibre rifles in a wood near here. He died last night in City hospital. Waddell termed the shooting accidental.

declines to issue the total number of enemy subs destroyed or believed to be destroyed, for security reasons.

The secretary said he is sure that despite the U-boats being destroyed the Germans are still building them faster than they are losing them.

In the present situation he added, "there is nothing on which to predicate any sanguine hopes for early stopage or cure of the menace."

"We need to press just as hard as ever for construction of destroyers and escort vessels," he said.

The secretary also said that the cooperative use of planes and surface ships is proving very effective against submarines and that "no measures that we are familiar with which would help reduce the sub menace are not being used—there is no foolish feeling of complacency about this situation."

Of the two enemy submersibles announced today as having been destroyed, the German U-boat was sunk in a fight with a destroyer in the Atlantic while the Japanese was wrecked by the armed guard crew of an American merchant vessel which it had torpedoed.

Both actions were at night. The Pacific encounter did not start until the submarine's first torpedo hit the heavily loaded merchantman.

The Japanese torpedo struck the cargo ship and almost lifted it out of the water. The ship's crew and 35 passengers prepared to abandon ship.

They eventually did abandon but the next morning the vessel was still afloat and it was towed to an Allied port so that both cargo and ship were saved.

The Japanese submarine skipper, the navy said, "made one mistake—it proved to be his last."

Immediately after the torpedo hit he surfaced and sent a shell over the forward gun mount of the merchantman, but the Jap missed. The sub then opened up with a machine gun.

Lieutenant (JG) Charles E. Sothern, 32, of Nashville, Tenn., commanding the vessel's armed guard, opened fire with its after gun. Another gun crewman opened up with the forward gun.

The guns of the merchantman fired only four shells; two were direct hits.

"She was definitely sunk," the navy said.

Captain Jack Edgerton of San Francisco, Calif., master of the merchantman, gave the order to abandon ship because fire was raging in the engine room and the danger of explosion was great.

Casualties had been few and survivors put off in life boats and on rafts. They were rescued the next afternoon, but Captain Edgerton, the armed guard crew and part of the ships crew again boarded the torpedo vessel for its tow to port by an Allied ship.

The destroyer used its five inch guns to wreck the German prowler and send it, battered and torn, beneath the Atlantic waves.

MOTHER OF SEVEN DIES AT AGE 59

Mrs. Frank Middling, Nova, Had Been Ill For Three Years.

ASHLAND — Mrs. Frank Middling, mother of seven children, died Monday afternoon at her home near Nova, after an illness of three years.

Mrs. Middling's two sons are in the armed services, Pvt. Howard Middling being stationed at Camp Edwards, Mass.; and Seaman 2c Chester Middling, now at Grosse Ile, Mich. Five daughters, Edna, Margaret and Marie, of Ashland; and Vivian Jean and Viola of Elyria, also survive, as does Mrs. Middling's husband.

Mrs. Middling was a member of the United Brethren church of Nova, and a life-long resident of Ashland county. Funeral services will be conducted from the church at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday, by Rev. Paul Kirk, and burial will be in Savannah cemetery. The body will be at the Denbow-Bear funeral home here until the time of services.

A series of four meetings for Richland county farm women who make clothing for their families were scheduled today by Miss Elizabeth Bay, home demonstration agent.

A session on "Pattern Alterations" was held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Clem Stine in Plymouth. Another on the same subject is scheduled for Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. at the home of Mrs. George Stroup near Shelby.

"Dress Fitting and Construction Technique" will be discussed at demonstration meetings starting at 11 a. m. Thursday in the Darlington Community house and at 11 a. m. Friday in the Ontario Community church.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Fined In Court — Arrested on charges of failing to observe a stop sign on U. S. Route 30-N yesterday afternoon, Wilbur McCallister, Mansfield R. D. 6, was fined $5 and costs in municipal court this morning.

Gets $10 Fine—Clara M. Poffenbaugh, 12½ South Park street, was fined $10 and costs in municipal court this morning on charges of driving without an operators license on State route 39 early this morning.

Two Collisions — Autos driven by Nick Demyan, 287 Grace street and Mary L. Sponseller, 147 Rowland avenue, were damaged in a collision on West Luther place yesterday, according to a police report. Police reported a collision between cars operated by William Snyder, Scio, and Robert B. Staples, 128 North Main street, at Diamond street and Park avenue east.

Dwelling Prowled—Dude Minnear, merchant policeman, told police last night that his furnished but untenanted dwelling at 215 North Franklin avenue, had been entered by a prowler. Patrolmen John Gilbert and John Steel were unable to find evidence of theft although a broken rear door indicated an attempt at forcible entry.

Chimney Blaze—Central station firemen were called to the home of Walter Hill, 290 East Second street, yesterday when the burning out of a chimney caused an alarm.

Wins Probation—W. E. Weaver, sentenced from Richland county March 25, 1941, for forgery, was among 63 inmates of the London prison farm who were granted paroles today by the Ohio Parole commission. He is serving a one-to-20-year sentence and will be freed May 1.

Collection Good — Averaging more than $10,000 a day for the past week, Richland county real estate tax receipts today had climbed to $259,455 with slightly more than two weeks to go to the March 10 deadline. Collections for the week totaled $179,859 with the best day producing $25,739.

Adopt 'Slow' Time—Lexington schools today had become the first in the county to adopt Ohio time for their class schedules, according to County Superintendent Boyd Robinson.

Lucas Club Meeting—The Lucas Community club will hear Civilian Defense Chairman James Eberly detail "point rationing" at their meeting at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the Lucas school.

Beta Gamma Group Meeting — The cabinet and program committee of the Beta Gamma sorority will meet at 8 p. m. today in the home of Miss Vivian Roberts, Park avenue west road. Plans will be made for observance of the nation-wide theme "Our Job—the Nation's Business."

HALT WORK

1,700 Walk Out at Steel Plant Flying Navy 'E.'

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. — (U.P.) — Strike of virtually the entire force of 1700 men today halted production at the Johnstown plant of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation.

The walkout occurred when the 7 a. m. shift reported for work at the plant, recently awarded the Navy "E" for excellence in its war production program.

The labor dispute grew out of disagreement between workers and management over allotment of time in the foundry of the plant, it was said. Workers took issue with the company's plan to divide available time between regular foundry employes and helpers—a move designed to give the latter increased earnings.

new "point" books which they will use after March 1, when the current "freeze" on canned goods will end.

Ration officials request that one adult register for their entire family, bringing a completely filled out "consumer's declaration" form, published Sunday and last Wednesday in The News-Journal, and war ration book one for each member of the family.

Meanwhile in Washington today, some items not included in the "freeze" and ration lists were placed under "ceiling" prices as an emergency method of preventing "scare" buying and price piracy. Included in the lists were fresh vegetables and eggs. Prices fixed were at last week's levels.

There was a minimum of confusion this afternoon as Mansfield teachers began the job of registering residents whose last initials came in the first part of the alphabet.

Richland countians expect that use of the books will also be without confusion since details of the point system will be distributed by the civilian defense block leaders with grocery point lists simplifying the business of shopping at the stores. Such uniform lists will be required in prominent spots in all stores, ration officials said.

A list of "point" values appears elsewhere in this edition of the News-Journal. Ration authorities stress that purchasers consult such lists and arrange their purchases accordingly in advance of their visits to the stores as a means of conserving time and eliminating undue confusion.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—Before Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek came down here the other day, I looked back over the notes of my visit with her for tea in Chungking last April. I thought perhaps I had been overly impressed. The first few lines in my notebook run as follows:

"Then Holly Tong took me to see Madame Chiang. She more than lived up to build-up.

Speaks English—no accent—cigaret in long holder—Col. Chennault was leaving as I arrived and she introduced me—she has everything—looks, wit, vivacity and intelligence."

She asked about the airplane trip, whether it was hard, the route, how many days, and other traveling details. She said she might go to the United States for treatment soon. She talked about the Indian situation, and at length about abolishing extra-territoriality, and said she was "hitting from the shoulder."

I believe that what I wrote about Madame Chiang at that time laid it on fairly thick. But on the basis of her first few days in Washington, it seems to stand up. She has conquered all here thus far. Even the newspaperwomen have gone all out for her—so she must have something that even Clare Luce hasn't got, because the lovely Clare had to work her way through.

Newspaper correspondents who were at the White House press conference when she appeared with the president participated in a show such as we probably shall never see again.

It was high state drama, played by the real characters. Some day they may put Helen Hayes in the part but she'll never do it any better than Madame acted it in real life. It was the delicate, feminine, shrewd, quick, witty and powerful first lady of the East against the great master himself. As the press conference began the president asked the reporters not to put any catch questions to Madame. She in turn played to the president as the big strong man who could work miracles.

Madame Chiang, tiny, with feet dangling from the high-seated Roosevelt chair, was working smoothly, while toying with her compact, to coax a promise out of President Roosevelt for China. Mr. Roosevelt, the master of the press-technique, was trying with equal smoothness not to melt too much under Madame's technique.

Imagine the scene. Two hundred reporters in on the show, Madame Chiang sitting between the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, who laid her hand protectingly on Madame's fragile arm.

Madame makes a lively little greeting, with delicate flowers for everyone. A reporter thrusts a direct question as to whether China's manpower is being fully used in the war. Madame holds her poise, but with a touch of feeling replies that China's men are fighting to the extent that munitions are available for them. When more munitions are sent to China, more men will fight. With the greatest of ease, she has thrown the ball square into the lap of the president. He explains that we will send munitions as fast as the Lord will let us.

Madame, smiling and making it all so polite and sweet, says she hears there is a saying that the Lord helps those who help themselves.

About that time President Roosevelt indicated it had gone on long enough and suggested that if the reporters had any questions for him they'd better be getting on with them.

As we left the president's office, the three were sitting inscrutably in a neat row. Mrs. Roosevelt's hand was no longer laid protectingly on Madame's arm. Madame, not a hair ruffled, had a pleasant impersonal gaze from which no thoughts escaped. The president was busy with parting words to straggling reporters.

Whatever it was that Confucius said, it sure was a mouthful!

FIGHT ON SIZE OF U. S. ARMY NEARS CLIMAX

Senate Group Holds Secret Hearings, Bankhead Calls For Action on Bill.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The congressional fight to limit size of the army rapidly moved toward a climax today.

A senate appropriations subcommittee which has been holding secret hearings on proposals to limit size of the fighting forces met in secret session to discuss its course.

The committee was reported to be closely divided on the question of trying to curb the plans of the armed services to have 11,000,000 men in uniform by Dec. 31.

As the subcommittee went into session a movement was started among some members of the senate military affairs committee for a showdown on all proposals setting the number of men that can serve the nation.

One member who is firmly behind the army said that an effort would be made to persuade the military affairs group to issue a ringing declaration against interference with plans of the chiefs of staff.

At the same time, Sen. Bankhead (D.), Ala., also fought action from the military committee on his bills deferring all farm workers from the draft and requiring furlough of those now in service in the U. S.

Sen. Reynolds (D.), N. C., chairman of the committee, said that the war and navy departments have been asked for reports on the bills.

The drive for passage of the Bankhead measure to halt induction of farmers was spurred by announcement of the point values in the food rationing program.

Sen. Taft (R.), Ohio, disclosed that he is in favor of the bill. This brought to 41 the number of senators, Republicans and Democrats, who have declared publicly for the measure to halt calling farmers to the colors.

Since several other senators privately have indicated their support of the measure, farm bloc leaders predicted its passage. House sentiment was reported to be overwhelmingly in favor of the legislation.

DELAY ACTION ON REPEAL OF MEAL SALES TAX

Ohio Legislators Also Hold Off on School Subsidy to Pass Appropriations First.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—An, informed source in the Ohio legislature predicted today that action on the administration's proposal to repeal the sales tax on food would be delayed until the $369,000,000 biennial appropriation bill is out of the way.

Similar treatment will be given a proposal to increase the state's subsidies to schools by $2,800,000 a year, he added.

The appropriation measure will be ready for a vote in the house about March 1, and two weeks at least will be required for its passage in the senate.

Once the appropriation bill is disposed of, it is reliably reported the legislative leaders will be almost ready for sine die adjournment.

The sales tax repealer was passed by the senate Jan. 26 and since has been tied up in the house taxation committee. Some members question the advisability of slicing approximately $3,500,000 a year from the state's income, which the repeal would do, at a time when many other revenues are declining.

On the other hand, if the food tax were not disturbed, the legislature then could vote the $2,800,000 a year in extra subsidies for the school without throwing the budget out of balance.

After action is completed on the appropriation bill the legislature will know how much more money it can spend without exceeding the budget.

The school subsidy bill was recommended for passage by the senate education committee two weeks ago but the senate leadership has declined to bring it up for a vote. Governor Bricker had recommended that the legislature continue school subsidies on their present scale.

As for adjournment, Senate Clerk Thomas E. Bateman said he saw little reason why it should not be reached by April 1.

When the legislature reconvened for its eighth week last night the senate liquor control committee killed a resolution proposing a legislative investigation of Ohio's liquor shortage.

The senate agricultural committee recommended adoption of a resolution asking Ohio congressmen to seek repeal of all federal regulations restricting crop production in Ohio.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—Like the man who didn't know whether he could play a violin because he had never tried, the American people are attempting something new in the rationing of canned goods and may not do very well at first.

Spoiled we may be, if anyone wants to say so, but nevertheless we have been living out of cans more and more these last 25 years or so and the can-opener is one of our most important tools. In some great production areas whole crops were canned right on the ground and as the factory took over the job of cleaning, cooking and preserving food, there occurred a corresponding decline of the tricks, which, to a frontier people, were mere cabin routine. The development of the canned goods industry and of the capsule city apartment occurred together, each promoting the other.

Pegler

The idea of the little apartment was that the little woman would not bother to preserve food during the canning season and the idea of the canners was to simplify life for her and give her more time to spend at the beauty parlor or the cocktail den, or make it easy for her to whip up something when she came home tired from her job.

The canners spent millions of dollars advertising the merits of their goods and we believed them. Their soups and beans were tasty and apparently as wholesome as they said they were. From year to year they added hams and jellied chickens, asparagus and a variety of fruits to their line, always under competitive pressure. Economy and convenience were strong selling points. Their buyers in the field were so intent on cheapness that a tenth of a cent per unit became a haggling point in contracting for crops and a big chain would buy a whole season's pack of an area in order to mark down the price per can by a cent or two in the neighborhood branch.

The rationing plan seems to assume that canned food is just a household iron ration or supplement to the kitchen-cooked meal and of course it is true none of us has lived entirely on canned stuff. Yet, considering the enormous gross pack of food that the Americans have bought in cans every year and the proportion of canned and fresh food that is visible to the naked eye in any store, it must be that canned food is more than a convenience or a luxury.

Jay Darling, the Iowa cartoonist, has drawn another of his superb pictures dealing with this ration order. He shows a plainsman squatting by his f'ng pan, his wife and child peering from their covered wagon parked close by, remarking brightly to a modern city man who is yowling about his canned-food ration, "Don't take on so, sonny, your pa and ma never heard of canned vegetables till long after you were born."

Certainly our people will turn to and produce garden food in victory gardens and other small plots, a gain which won't amount to much against the greater loss if the farm industry doesn't get its men, but there are still millions of people who can't raise as much as a scallion. Window-box and flower-pot farming are not worth the bother.

But if things are as bad as these rationing orders indicate, the people will make a mighty effort, and we never can tell till we try. There are many who in normal times customarily have kept not just a few cans but whole cases of canned food as a normal reserve with no thought of hoarding. People in the country areas even now would do better and save gasoline by buying in quantity and only recently Mr. Wickard was quoted as advising the public to put in stores of canned food as there was plenty of it.

One pleasant possibility suggests itself at once. It is an offense to make a false declaration of canned goods on hand in a home but the constitution forbids unreasonable search of a home and "no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation and particularly describing the place to be searched and the things to be seized."

This means that in accordance with Mrs. Roosevelt's remark, "It is wonderful what your neighbors know about you," a new crew of intruders, informed by snoops, jealous neighbors or faithless friends, will now have the right to invade the American home and make arrests for the illegal possession of an undeclared can of beans.

250 MADE ILL AT CAFETERIA

Food Poisoning Blamed in Mass Sickness at Columbus Store.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—City Health Commissioner Nelson C. Dysart launched an investigation today after more than 250 employes of the F. and R. Lazarus and company, were stricken with a nauseating illness following their evening meal in the department store's cafeteria.

At least 85 of those stricken were removed to hospitals for treatment while most of the other workers were cared for in an emergency hospital set up within the store and then sent home. Hospital attaches said all those afflicted were acutely nauseated, but none was reported seriously ill.

Traffic on downtown streets around the store, the city's largest, was snarled as practically all available ambulances and taxi cabs were called to remove the ill workers to hospitals and their homes. Police, unable to clear the streets, drafted military police to direct traffic and other soldiers assisted in carrying out workers on stretchers.

Dr. W. R. Griffin, one of the first physicians on the scene, said the cause of the illness was not definitely determined, but added that all symptoms pointed to food poisoning. Simon R. Lazarus, president of the store, said the illness was noted soon after the employes finished eating in a cafeteria maintained for employes only.

The store stays open Monday nights to permit war workers to shop and practically all employes had eaten in the cafeteria. Not all were stricken however.

Up and Down THE STREET

A Waring avenue resident told police today that she is of the belief that things which have been happening around her home are part of a plot fostered by a domestic estrangement. She said that on Feb. 16 when her telephone was out of order repairmen discovered the wires had been cut outside the house. The incident of a prowler seen in the vicinity of her home Sunday night also is added to the report. Then there was the firing of rubbish in the basement Sunday night. Fire Captain Paul Young said today the Central station used shovels to scoop the flames out of the cellar which is part of a four-family dwelling. The woman's suspicions were recounted to Police Chief Meade K. Bates.

Observing an autoist searching through his pocket change for a nickel yesterday to deposit in a parking meter, Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals called to him: "You don't have to pay today," whereupon the motorist retorted "how come I'm an exception?" To this, Commissioner Boals replied, "You're no exception that's true, but Washington's birthday anniversary is—just like Sunday." And the driver's face fell a notch. "You know, the meters take in just about as much cash on such holidays as they do on ordinary weekdays," Boals said.

Mansfield neighborhood merchants were today considering the advisability of inaugurating their own rationing program following the unusually heavy sales of kites during the past two days. The heavy sales were accredited to the spring-like weather, and youngsters purchasing more than one were not classified as "hoarders," but merely those whose kites did not gain enough altitude to escape tree branches.

CITES NEED OF PLANE WORKERS

Sen. Ball Says Draft Takes Too Many Skilled Men From Plants.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Sen. Joseph H. Ball (R.) Minn., today said that the draft system must be revised if the vast aircraft production schedule is to be maintained during the war.

Speaking from experience in a Truman sub-committee inspection of the huge Ford bomber plant at Willow Run, Mich., and the new Curtiss-Wright plant at Columbus, O., Ball said that difficulties of both plants have been increased by the draft of key workers.

"If we hope to meet production schedules in the aircraft industry we have got to go in and work out schedules which will permit orderly replacement of inductees," said Ball.

"It takes time to replace a trained worker. Occupational deferment is not enough. We learned that men have been drafted who can be replaced with difficulty."

Many aircraft workers, Ball said, come from states others than those in which the plants are located. The local draft board in their home states, he said, often pay little attention to occupational deferment requests.

"Conditions at neither the Ford nor Curtiss-Wright plants were as bad as painted," said Ball. "At Columbus they have been handicapped because there has been no important aircraft industry in the area and they had to recruit 20,000 workers and train them.

"Absenteeism is high and management is spread pretty thin.

HEARING SET

Drye Gambling Case To Be In Muny Court Friday.

Charged with keeping gambling equipment, Pete Drye, 97 East Sixth street, will be arraigned in municipal court Friday—the first gambling case to be aired since Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch on Dec. 29 challenged law enforcement officers of the city to "either enforce existing gambling laws or ask for their repeal."

The Drye trial will be heard by Municipal Judge H. H. Schettler. Judge Kalbfleisch ascended to the Richland county common pleas bench Feb. 9.

Drye was arrested yesterday morning by Captain Paul Whipp, Lieut. Eugene Hartnett and Patrolman Carl Beard after C. J. Gerard and J. R. Murphy, state liquor law enforcement agents, signed affidavits declaring they lost $35 and $89 respectively "shooting craps" Sunday night at the Drye establishment. The top of a craps table, dice and a rake for dragging in—or shoving out coins—were confiscated by the police. Drye, held in city prison, furnished $500 cash bond at 2 p. m. yesterday.

Gerard and Murphy told city police they were in the Drye place in an effort to trap employes in the act of illegally selling liquor.

Aged Man Found Injured In Woods Leaves Hospital.

LOUDONVILLE—Object of a widespread search in the Loudonville area after he fell in the woods and fractured his leg last fall, George Yarman, 78, was returned to his home in Loudonville Monday from Samaritan hospital, Ashland, where he had been a patient for five months.

In a serious condition for several weeks as the result of his injury and exposure, the aged man apparently is recovering.

He was alone on a fishing trip south of Loudonville last Oct. 5 when he fell into a swampy place along a stream and was injured.

When Yarman failed to return home that night, Marshal Bert Conrad and three Boy Scouts organized a searching party and located him more than 10 hours after he suffered the fracture. They were guided to the injured man by his feeble calls for help.

aster." National funds are used for purchasing supplies and for emergency disaster relief.

Workers will make a house-to-house canvas in the 15-day campaign period with many of the city's plants cooperating by group sessions. Some will arrange payroll deduction systems for collecting the pledges. Materials for the canvas will be distributed.

Part of the 14-member committee will take part in tonight's program being seated with Thayer on the platform the background of which will be a huge Red Cross banner, with placards symbolic of the organization decorating the room.

The committee personnel includes, besides Birch: Mrs. W. W. Grant, representing Gerater Mansfield; E. K. Bacon, industry; Carlton S. Fernyak, retail stores; Samuel H. Campbell, national industries; James V. Will, public buildings; Mrs. P. S. Corey, women's clubs; Marshall C. Moore, men's organizations; Mrs. L. W. Birch and Mrs. W. J. Bishop, townships; Lowell B. Bournes, churches, R. A. McCracken, C. I. O. union; an unnamed representative of A. F. of L.; R. G. Pugh, Shelby, and M. K. Leggett, publicity.

Miss Miriam Hooper, Red Cross executive, said all phases of the Red Cross services would have representatives present in uniform. Among them will be Mrs. W. R. Treisch's canteen service which will serve refreshments to the assembled campaign workers.

Thayer, on leave from Fort Knox, as a special war fund representative has a background of various types of social work and criminology. He has worked in settlement houses for Italians in New York, on farms for underprivileged boys, as a field organizer for prevention of crime, as a lecturer and leader of the U. S. Public Education forum staff, as junior executive with the Boston emergency relief campaign groups, as a member of the Democratic speakers bureau, as a Louisville, Ky., N. Y. A. personnel director, and a staff reporter for International News Service.

ART SUPERVISOR AT GALION DIES

Miss Minnie Schaeffer Stricken At Home Early Today.

GALION — Miss Minnie B. Schaeffer died early this morning at her home here following an illness of three weeks.

She was supervisor of arts in the Galion public schools, a position she held until her illness.

Miss Schaeffer was born in Morrow county, and came to Galion 12 years ago. She is survived by three brothers, Harry of Los Angeles; Claude of Galion; and Ivan of Detroit, and one sister, Mrs. Catherine C. Swisher of Wickliffe.

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday afternoon at 2 p. m. at the Snyder funeral home, Galion. Burial will be in Lexington cemetery.

Finland Believed Ready For Peace

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, reiterated today the hope of the American government that Finland soon would withdraw from the war against Russia.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — (AP) —Finland, wearied by a war she was ill-prepared to support, is believed by reliable sources here to be about ready to make peace with Soviet Russia—but only on terms which would guarantee her people the freedom and independence they have enjoyed since the first World war.

Reports reaching Stockholm indicate the situation in Finland is rapidly developing to the point where the Finns would like to contact the Russians through some intermediary — preferably America.

As far as her relations with Germany are concerned, Finland is said to feel that she is not bound to Germany and that a move for a separate peace on her part could not be interpreted by the Axis as a stab in the back.

mission about 9,000,000 German officers and men, "of which no less than 4,000,000 were killed on the field of battle," he declared.

He pointed out the Russians began their offensive three months ago on the approaches to Stalingrad.

"Since then the initiative in military operations has remained in our hands," he asserted, with the Russians advancing in difficult weather conditions over a front extending 900 miles.

And, he said, Germany's "accomplices" in the Rumanian, Italian and Hungarian armies had been defeated.

Manpower reserve, Stalin declared, was the weak spot of the German army now, and he said it was unknown how they could make up the loss in either men or time.

"And time will not wait," he said.

The Soviet commander in chief in order of the day said:

To strengthen its discipline.

"To strengthen the blows on the enemy troops constantly and stubbornly and give him no chance to consolidate a defense line, to give him no rest by day or by night, to cut enemy communications, to surround enemy troops and annihilate them if they refuse to lay down their arms."

"To fan more extensively the flames of guerrilla warfare in the rear of the enemy. . . ."

U. S. Pays Tribute To Soviet Armies

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Headed by President Roosevelt, the American government today paid tribute to a valiant Russian army which, on the 25th anniversary of its founding, has started the Hitler forces on the road to ultimate defeat.

The Soviet army and the Russian people were lauded in messages to Premier Josef Stalin from the president and Secretary of War Stimson and in a formal statement by Secretary of State Hull.

Mr. Roosevelt said that the Red army and the Russian people have surely started the Hitler forces on the road to ultimate defeat and have earned the lasting admiration of the people of the United States."

hours before the broadcast to the nation, Mr. Roosevelt sent a message to Joseph Stalin expressing America's "profound admiration" for the Red army's "magnificant achievements, unsurpassed in all history."

The president struck out at "the skeptics, the cynics" of today whom he compared to those who gave Washington "his days of trial."

"The Americans of Washington's day faced defeat on many occasions. We faced, and still face, reverses and misfortunes," he said.

"Today, the great successes on the Russian front have led thousands of Americans to throw their hats in the air and proclaim that victory is just around the corner.

"Others among us still believe in the age of miracles. They forget that there is no Joshua in our midst. We cannot count on great walls crumbling and falling when the trumpets blow and the peoples shout.

"It is not enough that we have faith and that we have hope. Washington himself was the exemplification of the other great need."

The president's words were broadcast to Democratic dinners throughout the country, celebrating the completion of a fund-raising drive for the party.

Vice President Wallace said that if the United States and England "put forth the same unified, allout effort that now is being displayed by the magnificent Russians, Germany can be defeated in 1943."

Wallace, after calling on the Republican party to abstain from "purely political" tactics, said that Washington suffered "especially from Tory obstruction and halfhearted support," but "never lost courage."

among them but each still came on until it was hit and engulfed in flames.

"The destroyer screen," the eyewitness said, "would pick up the planes and let off a burst of withering fire. Our fire was so terrific that there were five tell-tale fires on top of the water at one time, marking the end of as many Jap planes.

"Meantime the entire convoy kept up a previously arranged battle movement, twisting and turning in order to offer as poor a target as possible.

"No torpedoes got home and the battle was over within 15 minutes.

"The attackers are believed to have been two-engined Mitsubishis.

"One destroyer radioed another 'There are two Japs in the water.' Said the reply: 'Toss them dog rations; there is no time to stop now. We will pick them up later'."

In the far Pacific skies, Allied warplanes stepped up the fury of their attack against Japanese bases across hundreds of miles of the South seas, dropping 15 tons of bombs in a single sweep over the Lae region in New Guinea.

"Our 1,000-pound bombs caused the heaviest destruction and many large fires were started," Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced, referring to the attack on Japanese-occupied villages in the Lae vicinity.

Other United Nations planes ranged far out over the rim of enemy-held islands above Australia, attacking the Japanese in New Britain, the Solomons and the Admiralty islands.

On the Burma front, RAF raiders pounded the big Japanese base at Akyab, on the Bay of Bengal, and attacked the Mingaladon airdrome near Rangoon.

Demands Bases For Lend-Lease

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Demanding that the United States obtain island bases in exchange for lend-lease, Rep. Melvin Maas, (R.) Minn., today declared that "we may find ourselves fighting the greatest war in history alone unless we impose conditions on the nations receiving lend-lease."

Maas made this statement while testifying before the house foreign affairs committee on extension of the lend-lease bill.

"We have no assurance that once Hitler is defeated that Russia will join in the war on Japan," he stated.

"The British stake in the Pacific has been reduced to a minimum. With the potential supply of Bolivian tin and synthetic rubber, the United States will no longer be dependent on the East Indies for those commodities.

"The only assurances we can have is through lend-lease and the conditions we impose."

Maas also warned that "unless a greater proportion" of lend-lease goes to the Far East, "all the fleets in the world" will not be able to dislodge the Japs from the chain of land bases they are now perfecting.

and called for a 48-hour work week without overtime pay. He also urged that labor leaders be compelled to stop collecting dues or transform such funds into war bonds.

The American war hero spoke in the face of proposals by assemblyman J. Eugene Zimmer, only American labor party representative, that the legislature go on record as not having endorsed his views on labor. All business was postponed until after Rickenbacker's speech so that Zimmer's resolution could not be introduced before the flying ace delivered his talk.

Rickenbacker struck back at protests against his appearance before the legislature by charging that freedom of speech in America is diminishing under "subtle restraints and pressures."

UNION PULLS OUT MEMBERS

Withdraws From Manpower Program, Hits Partiality.

AKRON—(U.P.)—The Akron industrial union council, central CIO body, today withdrew two of its members from the war manpower stabilization program and charged the WMC director with being "partial to management."

The action followed an inter-union fight involving one of its members, Harry Dobbins of the Firestone Rubber company, local, who voted for the stabilization program against the wish of the CIO council.

Harry C. Markel, WMC area director, said "We will not be frustrated in this program by the action of any one group."

A Few Drops Used In Time Help

Prevent Many Colds From Developing!

Specialized Medication—Perfected by Makers of Vicks VapoRub —Can Be Used Anywhere—Anytime—Works Fine!

WITH more and more doctors being called to war—and the doctors remaining at home busier than ever—it's up to you to take extra-good care of yourself.

Do all you can to avoid sickness that might lay you up. And above all—watch out for colds—contagious colds that cause the loss of millions of working-hours every month.

One of the best—and easiest—precautions you can take is to act quick at the first sniffle, sneeze or sign of stuffiness—by putting a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril.

WORKS WHERE TROUBLE STARTS

Specialized medication—Va-tro-nol works where 3 out of 4 colds start. Its quick action aids natural defenses against colds—and so helps prevent many colds from developing if used in time.

Always keep Va-tro-nol handy at home and at work—ready to use at the first sniffle or sneeze. You'll like the way it works!

When a Head Cold stuffs up your head, a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol quickly relieves the sniffly, sneezy, stuffy distress—makes breathing easier. Try it!

VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

...AND BETWEEN ROUNDS WE KEEP FIT

Yes, Adolf, your Axis gang had us stepping for a while—coming at us from both sides that way. But we're in high gear now, dear Fuehrer. Read our record and weep. 17,000 freight trains coming at you every instant! Millions of American troops being moved—three times as many as in the last war!

Oh, sure, the little Doctor predicted dire calamities for our locomotives and cars. But he forgot the ingenuity of a free people—ingenuity that is keeping American Railroads in top condition while handling the greatest traffic volume in history.

Here are a few examples of their resourcefulness—special treatments to preserve ties and timber . . . in-place welding to extend the life of steel rails . . . scientific maintenance that has reduced car failure and engine failure to one-fifth of the last war.

On the B & O alone, efficient care is keeping 97.9% of its 86,800 freight cars in constant operation—as well as 96.6% of its 1,981 locomotives.

American fighting men need the help of the American Railroads as never before. They're getting this help, and they'll continue to get it. 60,000 B & O men and women promise to do their part, realizing that railroad workers are war workers in the first line!

War Makes Brotherhood Real

OBSERVANCE of Brotherhood week, which extends through next Sunday, has more than ordinary significance this year as a result of many mental barriers having been laid down because of realization that millions of persons of different creeds and colors are now fighting for a common cause.

In sounding the keynote for observance of Brotherhood week, President Roosevelt said: "The perpetuation of democracy depends upon the practice of the brotherhood of man. The American conviction in war and in peace has been that man finds his freedom only when he shares it with others. People of every nation, every race, every creed are able to live together as Americans on this basis."

Sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Brotherhood week is designed to emphasize the American principles of equal rights, privileges and opportunities for all mankind—with the United States striving to present to the world an example of successful functioning of a government based on individual equality and orderly acceptance of majority rule.

It was also said by President Roosevelt, in introducing Brotherhood week: "We are fighting that the spirit of brotherhood which we prize in this country may be practiced here and by free men everywhere. It is our promise to extend such brotherhood earthwide which gives hope to all the world."

The common purposes of peoples of the United Nations, and the exemplification of brotherhood in action, as it is now seen on many battlefronts, tend to strengthen confidence that the future will bring increased realization that the cooperation, understanding and justice which are essentials of brotherhood are also necessary to world advancement and eventual permanent peace.

Rationing Serves As Honesty Test

REGISTRATION for No. 2 ration books, which starts today and extends through Friday, will impose one of the most severe tests of individual honesty that the people of America have ever undergone.

It is assumed that a large majority of the people of this country are "honest" and that only a small percentage require policing—as in the case of operators and patrons of "black markets" for illegal sale of scarce commodities.

But ideas of "honesty" seem to be relative, rather than absolute, and sugar and coffee rationing disclosed many instances of chiseling by persons who would angrily resent an intimation that they were acting dishonestly.

It is now asked that applicants for No. 2 ration book report the exact number of cans, bottles and jars (8-ounce size or larger) of commercially packed fruits, vegetables, juices and soups, chili sauce and catsup, owned on Feb. 21, 1943, minus five for each person represented in the declaration.

There is an impression around town, especially among those who have been in position to observe the extent to which some people have been laying in canned goods, that many people will make false statements about their stock on hand, despite the prescribed maximum federal penalty of ten years imprisonment, $10,000 fine, or both, for misrepresentation.

Thrifty planning to meet future needs has so long been considered a commendable trait that it is rather difficult to adjust buying habits to changed conditions, even under pressure of war's demands, and in at least some instances the idea that "Self-preservation is the first law of Nature" may dominate over customary honesty.

It was Shakespeare who rather pessimistically opined: "To be honest, as this world goes, is to be one man picked out of ten thousand," but it was Berkeley, the Irish philosopher, who took a more hopeful attitude in expressing belief that "He who says there is no such thing as an honest man, is himself a knave."

Mother Goose Provides Example

AS OHIO gets into action this week under two time standards, with resultant confusion, state legislators are pondering the matter of reconsidering their decision of a couple of weeks ago and either resuming federal War time for the duration or making the change in spring and fall, as was intended in the bill introduced by John L. Catlett, representative from Richland county.

Lack of foresight on the part of legislators who voted for the time change without realizing the unavoidable mix-up that would result is remindful of the familiar Mother Goose rhyme:

"There was a man in our town, and he was wondrous wise.
He jumped into a bramble bush and scratched out both his eyes.
And when he found his eyes were out, with all his might and main,
He jumped into another bush and scratched them in again."

Prompt restoration of uniform time in Ohio can be accomplished only by immediate legislative action, as practically all cities have decided to stay on federal War time at least through the summer, so as to have uniformity in industrial and business operations and also be on the same time as railroads and governmental agencies.

If passed this week, as an "emergency" and promptly approved by the governor, uniform time could again be made effective by next Sunday, thus carrying through the example of the wondrously wise man in Mother Goose, who lost no time in jumping into another bramble bush.

Hoover Makes Meaning Clear

WHEN Herbert Hoover announced yesterday that he will not consider being a candidate for president next year he used words that left no opening for questioning their meaning, as happened when Calvin Coolidge uttered his famous "I do not choose to run" declination.

Mr. Hoover said: "I am 70 years old . . . I am not and will not become a candidate for the presidency under any circumstances . . . My only ambition now is to help save our democracy and to contribute a little to the solution of postwar problems throughout the world."

That expresses the worthy ambitions of an experienced man who is capable of being of great service to his country at a time when there is crying need for wise counsel in the administration of national affairs.

Mr. Hoover's availability as a patriotic American, not as an aspiring partisan, can be no longer doubted, and it may well be hoped that he will soon be called to a place of high responsibility for which he is eminently qualified.

Settlement of Indian Imbroglio Is Vitally Important to Allies

(Editor's note: With the Indian controversy at white heat, The News-Journal today presents the first of ten articles on the situation by the noted war analyst Dewitt Mackenzie, just returned from a five months tour of most of the war zones. During the last six weeks, Mr. Mackenzie has been in India making an intensive study of the developments there. He has been a close student of Indian affairs since 1916 and you will find this series informative and timely.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

THERE are five hundred oxthodox ways of committing suicide, and then there is the five hundred and first method, which is for the outsider to project himself into the violent controversy growing out of the Indian Nationalist demand for purna swaraj—absolute independence from England.

Intrusion in family quarrels is at best a dangerous experiment, and the British-Indian imbroglio is the most volcanic of our time. In undertaking to expose the skeleton in the closet, therefore, I am proceeding with the full knowledge that I am likely to incur the displeasure and censure of both my British and my Indian friends.

When I left home on the 35,000-mile aerial swing, which was to include India, I had no intention of writing in detail on this situation. It wasn't a sleeping dog, but it seemed best to let it lie.

Having made an exhaustive study on the ground, however, I'm forced to the conclusion that I should be derelict if I didn't render a full report.

This conclusion is based on the knowledge that the great British-Indian problem has ceased to be a family affair. It has developed into a matter of vital importance to the cause of the United Nations.

We can go further without exaggeration and say it represents one of the major crises confronting the Allies. And to my mind, it is in such state that its solution is a matter of great urgency.

This, of course, means it has become interwoven with the destiny of our own country.

Therefore, you are entitled to know the truth. So I shall try to present all the salient facts of what is one of the most complicated controversies in history. My sole purpose is to do something constructive.

Right here I want to pay tribute to the kindly aid given me by both sides during my research. I criss-crossed the mighty reaches of India, talking with British officials here and with the great Indian leaders there. Nowhere did I encounter anything but fine co-operation.

HAVING made sweeping assertions regarding the vital importance of the Indian crisis, my next duty is to state the premises for such conclusions:

1. India not only is the arsenal of the Orient, but strategically it is one of the most essential of all the Allied military bases.

This huge subcontinent is the wedge which has divided the Axis from the Japs.

It is one of the major bases, may be the major base, for initial Allied operations against the Japs, when Hitler has been rendered impotent.

It is from India that the Allies will swing a mighty battering-ram across the Bay of Bengal against Japanese occupied Burma.

That back-door to China must be reopened so that supplies may pour through it.

2. Post-war security for the ideals of the Atlantic charter makes it imperative that this strategically located India should be a unified member of the United Nations.

India must be a protector against potential enemies of the Allied peace. More than that she must be the shock-absorber if rifts should appear in the Allied structure in the Orient.

3. As to the urgency of a settlement of the Indian differences there can be no question. The way I see it there are three cogent reasons for haste.

* * *

FIRST, India is a house divided against itself. While the authorities assure me they had things well in hand, they also said there was a continuance of the disturbances which stemmed from the collapse of the Cripps negotiations last summer. There have been bombings and sabotage of various sorts.

Without unity in this stronghold, the Allies must approach the coming offensive against Japan with great uneasiness.

Secondly, this land, where the great majority of the some 400,000,000 people always are hungry, is up against an unusual food shortage. This is likely to come to a head in March or April.

Many observers in India regard this situation as even more serious than the political quarrel. They envisage food riots should the government's program of relief fail of fruition.

Greatest anxiety, however, relates to the possibility of the food and political situations combining to provide fuel for a conflagration which might be hard to stop.

Third, Mohandas Gandhi's hunger strike has injected a new and highly dangerous element into the controversy. There is a grave danger that he will die.

Should Gandhi pass out under such circumstances the effects might easily be catastrophic. You have to know your India to realize how great an influence is wielded by this diminutive ascetic who, right or wrong, certainly is one of the outstanding leaders of his time. Unnumbered hosts worship him as a saint.

Only actual experience of the event can demonstrate how serious Gandhi's death might be. There can be small doubt that it might present a great threat to the security of state.

(Tomorrow: The Man Gandhi.)

Chiseling Again.

The fracas stirred up in Chicago Thursday by a musicians' union secretary surely touched a new low in organized labor's public relations.

When Major General Vandergrift of the Marines arrived, a band of 12 union musicians invited itself into the ceremonies. Its leader insisted that a Navy band make way for the union band, and that the union band be paid for its services.

Here we see in action again the James C. Petrillo philosophy that a union charter is a license to chisel. It is but the latest of a series of incidents, which includes Petrillo's barring of high school musicians from the air last summer in an effort to make work for his dues-paying members.

On behalf of the younger and more progressive leaders of organized labor, we sincerely regret this shameless performance by Petrillo. He has a genius for getting headlines, and he uses it to keep on parade nearly all that is rotten in unionism.—Cleveland News.

Tells How Plasma Works Miracles

As told in the Red Cross Courier, Donald J. Sutton, 19, pharmacist's mate third class, U. S. N., walked into the Red Cross blood donor center in Baltimore to pay back the transfusion he received when he was injured in the North Africa fighting. The physicion at the center said, "Keep your blood, son. We'll get it from the people who don't have to go out there and fight."

Said Sutton, of the fighting in Africa: "I'm here to tell you that plasma is practically miraculous. They bring in a guy who's gone into shock. He looks like he's dead. And they pump plasma into him and back he comes. It's the most important of our medical supplies. Every doctor and technician carries a plasma kit with him at all times. You wouldn't have any trouble making your weekly schedule if the people here could see the way it works. There are a lot of fellows coming back from Africa who wouldn't have returned if we hadn't had the plasma."

The army and navy have asked the American Red Cross to procure four million pints of blood during 1943. This is more than three times the amount obtained from volunteer donors at Red Cross centers last year.

Royalty Question Blocks Use of Invention In Lend-Lease Planes

WASHINGTON—The justice department has been investigating a situation at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, where an invention patented by a civilian employe has not been placed on lend-lease airplanes.

The employe is Weldon Worth, who has patented an invention for warming up airplane engines. Ordinarily, when an airplane engine starts cold and has to warm itself up, the sudden expansion of metal gradually lessens its life. The Worth patent is aimed to save this wear and tear and lengthen the life of the engine.

Mr. Worth, being employed at the Air Force's big procurement and development center, gave his invention free to the army.

However, a large part of U. S. planes are now sent to the Russians and British as part of lend-lease, and justice department officials say that Worth has not permitted his patent to be used on lend-lease planes without payment of a royalty.

When U. S. companies, making lend-lease planes, seek to use this invention, they get a letter from Worth's law firm of Harris and Harris, Dayton, reminding them of the necessity of making royalty payments.

Mr. Worth, when questioned by the Washington Merry-Go-Round regarding this, said it had not been decided as yet whether lend-lease planes were "commercial." He also stated that the royalty he was asking was "very reasonable," and that it seemed nonsense to quibble over a small royalty when the cost involved in many lend-lease planes went well over $100,000.

Meanwhile the government takes the position that since the patent was given free to the army, the government should not pay a royalty for its use on lend-lease planes. But the aviation plants making the planes say that Harris and Harris have warned them that a royalty will have to be paid. Therefore, since the aviation manufacturers cannot collect a royalty from the government, the lend-lease planes going to Russia and England are simply not getting the benefit of the engine-warming invention. And in Russia they certainly need it.

Subsidizing Fuel Oil.

THE public is largely unaware of the fact that the government is paying out about $70,000 a day to help meet the cost of moving oil to the east coast. This is in addition to the government's investment in pipe lines.

The payment is made to meet the difference between the cost of shipping oil by tanker and the cost of shipping it by tank car. In short, it is a subsidy to meet the higher cost of rail transportation.

When the submarines drove us to overland oil shipment, officials figured that the difference in cost would be about 95 cents a barrel. Should this be added to the cost of the gasoline and oil, and be paid by the consumer?

OPA said, No, it's a war cost and should not be borne by eastern consumers. Furthermore, it will increase the spiral of inflation.

So the government absorbs the difference.

What actually happens is that Jesse Jones, through his Defense Supplies Corporation, pays an average of 95 cents a barrel on all oil shipped from the Gulf area to the east coast. And since the daily movement by tank car is about 750,000 barrels, the bill runs up to well over $70,000 a day.

Note—Advocates of the Florida Canal point to the fact that if it had been completed when begun in the early New Deal days, it would now be possible to ship all the oil we need by cheap and safe inland waterways.

Russian Socialism Wanes.

THE RUSSIANS are doing more than reversing the direction of Nazi military movement. They are reversing certain important political and social directions.

Americans in Russia now report the reappearance of shoulder insignia on the officers of the Red army—for the first time since the dark days of the Revolution.

In those days, officers who supported the Bolshevik movement tore the epaulets from their uniforms as a mark of democracy. Those who failed to do so were regarded as enemies of the Revolution, and in some extreme cases, mobs attacked them, drove nails through the epaulets into their shoulders.

There is also a change in official awards or decorations indicating that Bolshevik scorn for heroes of the past is vanishing. Three of the most coveted decorations of the Soviet Union today are the award of "Nevski," who was a 13th Century Prince, and the awards of "Suvorov" and "Kutuzov," who were Czarist generals at the time of Napoleon.

Also the St. George's Cross, which would have been torn from the breast of the wearer a few years ago, has made its reappearance at official functions.

The U. S. public has the impression of modern Russians as dressed in coarse, formless clothing, but reports from the USSR today state that Red army officers dress with such punctilio as to make American officers look shabby by comparison.

THE TUNISIAN FRONT—(By Wireless)—Little things come to mean so much in wartime.

At this front I'm the only person I know who has a can-opener, and it's in constant demand. I have to carry it in my coverall pocket to keep it from being stolen. Somebody swiped my comb the other day.

Stealing ceases to be just stealing when something you need badly is taken. I've never stolen anything yet, but I wouldn't put it past myself under favorable circumstances.

I have a pair of fingernail scissors with me, and one day recently I lent it six times to soldiers who were just passing and asked if I had any nail clippers or scissors. Cold water and cold weather are hard on soldiers' hands. Their fingers get hard and crack around the nails. Night after night I've lain awake because my fingers had split back from the nail and throbbed with pain.

Our troops do manage to look fairly clean and presentable, even though sanitary facilities are skimpy. The Air Forces allow their soldiers to grow beards, but the rest of the army doesn't. Consequently the men have to shave regardless of how inconvenient it may be.

You become eminently practical in wartime. A chaplain who recently went through the pockets of 10 Americans killed in battle said the dominant thing he found was toilet paper. Careless soldiers who were caught without such preparedness have to use 20-franc notes.

Everything is so scarce you always take anything that's offered you whether you need it or not. I've taken a proffered cigaret while already smoking one. I've drunk wine, which I detest, just because somebody was sharing his bottle. I no longer have any shame about accepting candy, cigarets, clothing, or anything else anybody offers.

We have all been living for months on the policy which the famous Col. Edson Raff put in these words:

"I never refuse anything."

If somebody offered me a bottle of castor oil I'd accept it and hide it away.

Soldiers at the front are good about sharing whatever they have. The average soldier, when he has a windfall and gets a package of candy or cigarets from home, doles out to his friends. It's sort of share and share alike, for times are tough.

WHEN we correspondents are on the prowl we eat wherever we happen to be at mealtime. Right smack at the front, officers and men stand in the same line and eat together, but back a few miles they eat separately. At these posts the correspondents usually eat at the officers' mess, where chow is served in trays from the back end of a kitchen truck. You find a rock or sit on the ground and eat.

Still farther back, the messes are in tents. Sometimes you sit at a table and have plates and waiters serve you.

Correspondents are always welcome. We've spent so much time traveling that we know some of the officers in every unit in Tunisia and popping in for a meal once in a while becomes a small reunion. But whether you know the officers or not, you invariably know the mess sergeant. The old law of self-preservation, you know.

I personally have two favorite kitchen friends. Both happen to be Pittsburghers. One is Sergt. Pat Donadeo, from Allison Park, a suburb of Pittsburgh. The other is Pfc. Joe Fox, of the Oak Hill section of Pittsburgh.

Pat is mess sergeant of an armored outfit and he sets a mighty fine tray.

We have a special link because just a couple of hours before I showed up at the mess for the first time, Pat had received a letter from his wife commenting on one of these columns favorably, I might add).

Pat is of Italian extraction and speaks fluently, so we'll fare even better when we get to Italy, in case anything is left there, which there probably isn't.

Joe Fox is not a mess sergeant. He's a table waiter at the headquarters to which I retire occasionally to hole up and write. He can fry you two or three eggs when you show up hungry in midafternoon, or fix a hot cup of tea late at night.

Joe is quite a case. All the officers chuckle and say, "That Fox, he's something." His nickname is Double Exx. He's had it ever since he struck out in a high-school game with the bases loaded.

Joe thinks Westbrook Pegler and I are both wonderful. We in turn think Joe is wonderful. Of course Peg never heard of Joe, so I'm casting an affirmative vote for him. Since Joe is 4,000 miles away I guess Peg can afford to break his standing rule and like him just a little bit, by proxy.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, February 23, 1923

Gymnasium at Salvation Army barracks was gaining in popularity, with weekly attendance of more than 500 boys.

Country home of Alva Dill, near Bellville, was destroyed by fire.

Inmates of Ohio state reformatory gave minstrel show at Elks' stag party.

Seven hundred bushels of certified Russet potatoes were ordered by Richland county farm bureau for planting in this county.

Observance of "Wittenberg Night" featured meeting of St. Matthew's brotherhood.

Judge W. J. Bissman was speaker at anniversary meeting of Plymouth Knights of Pythias lodge.

Kubiac home at 26 Chestnut street was bought by Ralph M. Maglott.

Howard Marquis of New York City was visiting his parents here.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is the anniversary of the birth of George F. Handel, famous German composer, who was born in 1685. This day also marks the beginning of the express business in the United States. In 1839 the first express was carried between Boston to New York.

A Farmer's Diary

Spring Sign

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

TWO inches of snow had fallen during the night. It was raw and cold when I went to the barn just after sun-up. I shivered as I hurried back along the path.

Then from the apple tree by the waterside, overlooking the glassy steaming pond, came the trill of the first song sparrow. I stopped to look and listen, scarcely believing my ears. Snow had adorned the upper part of every branch. Each twig was ridged with inch-deep white—but there he was, a mite no longer than my thumb, and music issued from his quivering throat as though the sun were shining and south winds blew.

How could he sing a spring song in this frigid air? Dazzling, fleecy whiteness enveloped fields and highway. No feast of grain or crumbs was there to welcome him. To be sure, along the edge of the brimming pond, a line of open ground merged into the snowy border. Here tender bluegrass shoots had rooted in the shallow water; here tadpoles hid beneath the surface, small water bugs played in the shallows; tiny red fishworms had open furrows in the sand and silt a few inches beyond the water line. Weed seeds drifted here from distant fields, and some had tempting kernels. Here tender yellow dock rapidly heaved itself two inches above the clean washed silt.

After a few minutes, the song-sparrow deserted his little niche cut in to the snow on the apple branch, flitted down to the open space along the water. I saw him listen, nervously, for a worm's movement and nab a little red wriggler two feet away. Some small seeds, swollen from the moisture, he ate with satisfaction. He even pecked beneath the shallows at the tiny water bugs. I was surprised how much at home he seemed—although he was quite alone—far too early for a lady to venture forth, he winked.

He hesitated almost humanly before plunging into the chilly water for his bath. Then he churned the surface with his wings, and sprayed large drops a foot or more around, abandoning himself as he found the water warmer than the air, to the luxury of his early morning fun. Then, wet and heavy, he flew to a flat, sheltered stone where he shook and shivered and preened until he was clean and fluffy, and until the image which he glimpsed, reflected, must have pleased him—for with happy, satisfied air he flitted south along the swamp.

"It'll warm up soon," I said, as I went in. "The first song sparrow is here."
